Simoons,1994 Examines the use and avoidance of flesh foods including beef pork chicken and eggs camel dog horse and fish from antiquity to the present day Simoons finds that the recurrent theme of maintaining ritual purity good health and well being underlies diet habits He emphasizes that only a full range of factors can explain eating patterns and stresses the interplay of religious moral hygienic ecological and economic factors in the context of human culture From publisher description On Life Support Matthew I Thompson,2026-04-14 Finding strategies for today s environmental movement in classic science fiction films What can science fiction film tell us about the course of the modern ecological movement On Life Support traces how the environmental concerns of the 1970s were embedded in the eco dystopian cinema of the era and considers its implications for ecological thought and activism today Illuminating the patterns that shape our thinking about nonhuman nature Matthew I Thompson pairs iconic films such as Soylent Green and Silent Running with the transformational environmentalist texts that inspired them and kick started the modern environmental movement including Rachel Carson s Silent Spring and Buckminster Fuller s Operating Manual for Spaceship Earth Thompson examines this confluence of literature and cinema to show how as they translated environmentalism for Hollywood s audiences these movies distilled the movement s concepts into a form that revealed their inherent contradictions A sensitive analysis of the tensions that complicate environmentalist praxis especially between desire and fear in the activist impulse On Life Support offers a timely critique of the politics of environmental containment and control calling instead for a politics of interconnection and contamination It is after all by inviting complexity and chaos that we begin to undermine the myth of human mastery letting nature flourish on its own terms Retail e book files for this title are screen reader friendly with images accompanied by short alt text and or extended descriptions Rabbit Production for Food & Fur, 1979 - March 1987 Jerry Rafats,1987

Cookery Donovan Conley,Justin Eckstein,2020-04-21 The rhetoric of contemporary food production and consumption with a focus on social boundaries The rhetoric of food is more than just words about food and food is more than just edible matter Cookery Food Rhetorics and Social Production explores how food mediates both rhetorical influence and material life through the overlapping concepts of invention and production The classical canon of rhetorical invention entails the process of discovering one s persuasive appeals whereas the contemporary landscape of agricultural production touches virtually everyone on the planet Together rhetoric and food shape the boundaries of shared living The essays in this volume probe the many ways that food informs contemporary social life through its mediation of bodies human and extra human alike in the forms of intoxication addiction estrangement identification repulsion and eroticism Our bodies in turn shape the boundaries of food through research technology cultural trends and of course by talking about it Each chapter explores food's persuasive nature through a unique prism that includes intoxication dirt food porn strange foods and political invisibility Each case offers new insights about the relations between rhetorical influence and embodied practice through food As a whole Cookery articulates new ways of viewing food's powers of persuasion as well as the inherent role of persuasion in agricultural production The purpose of Cookery then is to demonstrate the deep rhetoricity of our modern industrial food system through critical examinations of concepts practices and tendencies endemic to this system Food has become an essential topic for discussions concerned with the larger social dynamics of production distribution access reception consumption influence and the fraught question of choice These questions about food and rhetoric are equally questions about the assumptions values and practices of contemporary public life
