The Innovation Ethic:

The Innovation Ethic Robert Kirk Mueller, 1971 Ethical Innovation in Business and the Economy Georges Enderle, Patrick E. Murphy, 2015-12-18 Innovation has become a buzzword that promises dramatic changes in almost every field of business. Absent from this attention is a serious discussion of the ethical sides of dramatic change. To address this, editors Georges Enderle and Patrick E. Murphy gather a team of experts to fully examine the ethics of innovation within business and the economy in this standout addition to the Studies in TransAtlantic Business Ethics series. Business Ethics of Innovation Gerd Hanekamp, 2007-05-06 Firms that operate in a market economy often depend upon innovations in order to achieve competitive advantages that sustainably secure their survival. Business ethics is thus largely concerned with questions about the decisional freedoms involved in innovation processes. Innovations oftentimes raise novel questions about the role of the state or the structure of society. Business ethics needs to provide a framework for balancing the different perspectives, values, and interests at stake. This balance must be achieved at the level of the firm in order to facilitate adequate long-term decisions, but it should also be sought at higher, including regulatory levels. Achieving this balance will require an ethical framework for entrepreneurial action. The particular disciplines engaged in generating innovations, as well as all relevant fields of applied ethics, should be involved in the balancing process. Business Ethics of Innovation is thus necessarily an interdisciplinary endeavour. This volume assesses general questions of how business ethics can help to structure innovations and specifically discusses pharmaceutical innovations as well as innovations in the IT sector.

Innovation, Ethics and our Common Futures Rafael Ziegler, 2020-06-26 The important yet contradictory role of innovation in society calls for a philosophy of innovation. Critically exploring innovation in relation to values, the economy, and social change, Rafael Ziegler proposes a collaborative theory and practice of innovation that aims to liberate possibilities for our common futures. Innovation Ethics Roger Hunt, 2024-02-09 While entrepreneurship characterizes an ideal form of self-sufficiency in practice, entrepreneurs find themselves subject to a complex network of support systems which in effect exploit their talents, resources, and passion for structural risk mitigation. This dynamic infrastructure, composed of founders, investors, and service providers, is not a necessary institution but rather the result of intersectional incentive structures managed by the professionalization of a process which is supposed to be anti-professional. This paradox should be addressed at a structural level if we hope to preserve the ideal of entrepreneurship. Innovation Ethics proposes a solution where we reframe a regulatory metric away from optimization towards innovation through the redistribution of risk across the entrepreneurial ecosystem. This solution finds support in a model of innovation ethics which we have designed to correct the over-reliance on naturalistic models by stimulating a debate over how and even if innovation should proceed. Ethics and Innovation in Public Administration Gilles Rouet, Stela Raytcheva, Thierry Côme, 2024-09-12 This edited volume analyzes the ethics of innovations in the public sector in Europe. The book presents a theoretical analysis of empirical cases, deepening the understanding of innovation in public administration by identifying common processes across various local contexts It also delves into the study of the European Union s ethics and values exploring their impact on innovation at both European and local levels Additionally the book features comprehensive case studies encompassing different sectors professions and statuses within public administration providing a multifaceted examination of innovation s complexities By considering multiple perspectives including those of citizens politicians managers trade unions NGOs and political leaders the book offers a holistic understanding of the ethical challenges associated with innovation in public administration It also addresses intrapreneurship successful initiatives struggles and resistance to change training for elected representatives and the integration of an ethical approach into local authority communications As such this volume will be an essential resource for scholars practitioners policymakers and anyone navigating the intricate landscape of ethical decision making in European public administration

Who Determines Your Life? Who Shapes Your Opinion? Hans Roggwiler,2026-02-06 In times of great upheaval it can be important to find out who is turning our hamster wheel controlling us endangering our coexistence and destroying our economic foundations We talk about democracy but it is limited to voting every four years Those who seek a say in current affairs will find few opportunities to get involved in this country Anyone who is genuinely interested in having a greater say will find inspiration here Beyond well documented and razor sharp analyses the book points to viable ways in which equal coexistence can be achieved again Written in a reader friendly style the book addresses young adolescents and adults alike and thus the entire community

The Ethical Dilemma of Information Asymmetry in Innovation Carla C. J. M. Millar,Yuri Udalov,Hartley Millar,2012 A sufficient and steady stream of innovations is widely seen as a basis for healthy modern economies Governments divert substantial resources from other purposes in society to increase innovation Yet the failure rate among innovative SMEs is high suggesting that resources are wasted Avoiding such waste is a challenge for both governments and investors but also raises a question for the innovative company namely how to build and fund the enterprise on an ethical basis The dilemma of giving in to temptations to cut corners clearly exists for example to exploit the inevitable asymmetry of information arising in innovation and potentially deploy this in support of misleading claims about specific capabilities and or the unjustified creation and exploitation of reputation This is consistent with Olaf Fisscher s finding that entrepreneurs starting new ventures tend to exhibit an inherent bias towards compromising their own values in order to succeed at any cost When the innoSME s aspirations are unrealistic or the proposed innovations are of marginal value the ethical issues are broader and extend also to those who are potential financiers Noting this as a gap in the ethics literature we argue that the current situation fails to match economic and ethical ideals and that work is needed to develop tools which allow those who provide finance and support for innovation to target it more effectively at those who have a prospect of successfully launching genuine innovations and thus reduce the noise in the innovation field
