

A close-up photograph of a computer keyboard. The central focus is a white key with the words "FRAUD" and "PREVENTION" printed in a bold, red, sans-serif font. The key is slightly raised and has a subtle shadow. Surrounding it are other white keys, some of which are blurred due to a shallow depth of field. The keyboard's frame is a dark grey color. The overall lighting is soft and even, highlighting the texture of the keys and the sharpness of the red text.

Fifties Television William Boddy, 1990 Just a few years in the mid 1950s separated the golden age of television's live anthology drama from Newton Minow's famous vast wasteland pronouncement Fifties Television shows how the significant programming changes of the period cannot be attributed simply to shifting public tastes or the exhaustion of particular program genres but underscore fundamental changes in the way prime time entertainment programs were produced sponsored and scheduled These changes helped shape television as we know it today William Boddy provides a wide ranging and rigorous analysis of the fledgling American television industry during the period of its greatest economic growth programming changes and critical controversy He carefully traces the development of the medium from the experimental era of the 1920s and 1930s through the regulatory battles of the 1940s and the network programming wars of the 1950s
