Terror In Russia:

Rule of Terror Hellmut Andics, 1969 The Terror in Russia Petr Alekseevich Kropotkin (kniꞑaꞑz'), Parliamentary Russian Committee, 1909 The Red Terror in Russia Sergey Petrovich Melgounov, Uritsky People's Commissary of the Northern Commune and a leading spirit of the Che Ka of Petrograd was assassinated on August 17 1918 by a Socialist ex student named Kannegiesser who during the war had been a military cadet In the official report of the assassination it was said Leonid Kannegiesser asserts that he killed Uritsky solely of his own free will in revenge for the arrest of certain army officers and for the execution of his friend Peretzweig but in no case in obedience to orders from any political party or association On August 28 another Socialist in this instance a Madame Kaplan attempted similarly to assassinate Lenin And how did the Soviet Government respond to these terrorist acts A semi official communique published in the issue of the Che Ka's Weekly of October 20 reported that by a decree of the Che Ka 500 hostages had been shot Nor yet is the true number of these victims known And probably it never will be known And the same with regard to the victims names Nevertheless it can at least be asserted that the real figure greatly exceeded the figure given in the semi official communique and that the original of the report was never published at all In August last two barge loads of Russian officers were scuttled in the Gulf of Finland and some of the officers bodies washed up on the shores of a property belonging to a friend of mine lashed together with barbed wire in twos and threes Will this be deemed an exaggeration Yet Moscow and Petrograd still contain numbers of persons who could confirm the facts whilst another source tells us that as late as the year 1921 the Bolsheviks were disposing of their political opponents in the same barbarous manner From another eye witness of events in Petrograd of the period we have the following details As regards Petrograd it is usual to place the number of executions for the year 1918 at 1300 True the Bolsheviks admit to 500 only but that is because they take care not to include in the estimate the hundreds of officers and ex civil servants and private individuals who were shot in Kronstadt and the Fortress of SS Peter and Paul shot not by actual order of the central authorities but by order of local soviets Kronstadt alone saw 400 shot in a night after being posted before three huge graves dug in the courtyard of the fortress Interviewed by a newspaper correspondent at this period Peters one of the chiefs of the All Russian Che Ka described the Terror as a terror simply of hysteria Then he went on In spite of popular rumour I am not as bloodthirsty as I am represented to be All that has happened is that a few over excitable revolutionaries lost their heads and showed too much zeal As regards Petrograd no shootings at all took place before Uritsky's murder though there have been many since and sometimes the shooting was indiscriminate and as regards Moscow its only response to the attempt upon Lenin has been the execution of a few ex monarchical Ministers But added the merciful Peters meaningly I should like to say that every endeavour on the part of the Russian bourgeoisie to raise its head again will be met with such a rebuff with such a chastisement as will throw even the Red Terror into the shade The Red Terror in Russia Сергей Петрович Мельгунов, 1925 The Great Terror Robert Conquest, 2008 The definitive work on

Stalin's purges the author's The Great Terror was universally acclaimed when it first appeared in 1968. Provides accounts of everything from the three great Moscow Trials to methods of obtaining confessions, the purge of writers and other members of the intelligentsia, on life in the labor camps and many other key matters. On the fortieth anniversary of the first edition, it is remarkable how many of the most disturbing conclusions have borne up under the light of fresh evidence. The Red Terror in Russia Sergeĭ Petrovich Mel'gunov, 1979 The Terror in Russia Petr Alekseevich Kropotkin (knižka), 1909

Lenin's Terror James Ryan, 2012-06-25 This book explores the development of Lenin's thinking on violence throughout his career from the last years of the Tsarist regime in Russia through to the 1920s and the New Economic Policy and provides an important assessment of the significance of ideological factors for understanding Soviet state violence as directed by the Bolshevik leadership during its first years in power. It highlights the impact of the First World War in particular its place in Bolshevik discourse as a source of legitimating Soviet state violence after 1917 and explains the evolution of Bolshevik dictatorship over the half decade during which Lenin led the revolutionary state. It examines the militant nature of the Leninist worldview, Lenin's conception of the revolutionary state, the evolution of his understanding of dictatorship of the proletariat and his version of just war. The book argues that ideology can be considered primarily important for understanding the violent and dictatorial nature of the early Soviet state at least when focused on the party elite but it is also clear that ideology cannot be understood in a contextual vacuum. The oppressive nature of Tsarist rule, the bloodiness of the First World War and the vulnerability of the early Soviet state as it struggled to survive against foreign and domestic opponents were of crucial significance. The book sets Lenin's thinking on violence within the wider context of a violent world.

Terrorism and Power in Russia Anastassiya Mahon, 2026-03-02 Why is it that in Russia crises so often become framed as terrorism and what does this tell us about power, politics and state control? This book examines how the Kremlin has used the language of terrorism to shape Russia's domestic, regional and international politics from the Chechen Wars to Syria and the 2022 invasion of Ukraine. Combining securitisation theory with a three-level analysis, it traces how securitising actors and speech acts reframed terrorism as an existential threat, enabling exceptional measures at home, influence across Russia's near abroad and claims to counterterrorism leadership internationally. Using securitisation theory, the book follows the rhetoric through laws, presidential addresses, media narratives and policy outcomes, showing how terrorism securitisation patterns forged in Chechnya travelled into Syria and Ukraine. It offers a clear, system-based analysis of Moscow's securitisation of the terrorism threat, drawing on verified official documents and original Russian sources to explain how security talk becomes state practice. This book will interest scholars, students and practitioners of Russian politics, security studies and international relations, as well as readers in media and communication area studies and contemporary history. It is suitable for advanced undergraduate and postgraduate courses on foreign policy, terrorism and counterterrorism, and propaganda and will be useful to policymakers, analysts and journalists seeking a rigorous guide to Russia's securitisation of
