Writers Reality:

Creating Realities Erhan Simsek, 2019-02-20 Business is woven into the very fabric of American life yet rarely surfaces in the nation's literary history. Even in novels about business it proves an elusive motif that fails to mirror actual business organizations. This book argues that literary representations of business remain ineffable because business serves potential aesthetic functions subtly yet meaningfully impacting readers. Exploring the complex representation of business in realist, naturalist, and modernist works, Erhan Simsek reveals these functions by analyzing how the motif intertwines with social developments, literary movements, and author biographies. He thus illuminates the motif itself while highlighting the utility of a focus on the changing functions of literature.

A Writer's Reality Mario Vargas Llosa, 1991 Employing the deconstructive literary theories of Jacques Derrida, McHoul, communications, Murdoch, U. Australia, and Wills, French, and literary and film theory, LSU writes about reading in general and in particular about Pynchon's three novels and his early stories. The book itself was manufactured in Hong Kong, presumably the source of the acidic paper. Vargas Llosa reflects on six of his own novels and discusses the importance to him of the fiction of Borges, how his method of writing has evolved, his attraction to Sartre's work days at military school, and the process of changing the dead language of the living language of serious art. Modernism and Morality M. Halliwell, 2001-09-12 Modernism and Morality discusses the relationship between artistic and moral ideas in European and American literary modernism. Rather than reading modernism as a complete rejection of social morality, this study shows how early twentieth-century writers like Conrad, Faulkner, Gide, Kafka, Mann, and Stein actually devised new aesthetic techniques to address ethical problems. By focusing on a range of decadent, naturalist, avant-garde, and expatriate writers between 1890 and the late 1930s, this book reassesses the moral trajectory of transatlantic fiction.

Scrutinies by Various Writers, 1928

Political Economy of Socialist Realism Evgenii Aleksandrovich Dobrenko, 2007-01-01 Bringing together the Soviet historical experience and Stalin-era art in novels, films, poems, songs, painting, photography, architecture, and advertising, Dobrenko examines Stalinism's representational strategies and demonstrates how real socialism was begotten of Socialist Realism.

Reality And/or Realities Mauricio Abadi, Susan Rogers, 1995-09 We all take reality for granted as a measuring stick for subjective experience. Philosophers have swung between realism and idealism for many centuries. Psychoanalysis denies such an opposition and supports the idea that external and internal reality are different ways of describing the same thing. It is a tentative and precarious bridge to close the gap between these multiple experiences. This book explores the radical idea that reality is deconstructed, codified, and reconstructed in an absolutely singular fashion by each of us at all times.
