

A complex collage of images representing various social and environmental issues. In the center, a large, dark, textured sphere is surrounded by a thick plume of smoke or steam rising into a dark, stormy sky. To the left, a group of people is protesting, with one person holding a sign that says "CENTRE" and a circular logo. In the background, a city skyline with several skyscrapers is visible. To the right, a group of people, including a young child, looks on with concern. In the foreground, a group of people wearing blue headscarves is gathered. The overall scene is one of global crisis and social unrest.

Thinking about Social Problems Donileen R. Loseke, 2011-12-31 The new second edition of this distinctive and widely adopted textbook brings into the classroom an overview of how images of social problems can shape not only public policy and social services but also the ways in which we make sense of ourselves and others It introduces two primary changes First some attention is devoted to the new social movements that emphasize social change through identity transformation rather than through structural change Second the text now also looks more closely at the importance of emotions in constructing public consciousness of social problems When the first edition was published Teaching Sociology noted Loseke does a superb job explaining the relationship between sociology and social problems in a text that is very well research and engaging yet with tremendous attention to detail and accuracy Would provide a solid base for any social problems class Contemporary Sociology wrote that the book is engagingly well written in a personal unpretentious style and well informed by the author's knowledge of the professional literature
