

DECISIONS & CONSEQUENCES

You make decisions every day: what clothes to wear, what music to listen to, what to eat. You probably don't put a lot of thought into most of your decisions because they don't seem very important. However, some decisions that are made without much thought are important, and they can impact your life for a long time—possibly forever. That's why you need to stop and think before you act.

With all that teens have to deal with today, it can be hard to always make the right choice or decision. But often, taking just a few seconds to consider what you're about to do can keep you from doing something you will regret.

When you're in a situation that requires you to make a fast decision, ask yourself:

1. Is this the right thing to do?
2. Is this a safe thing to do?
3. Will I feel good about myself if I do this?

If the answer to any of these questions is no, then more than likely, what you are about to do will have negative consequences for you and others. It's time to take a step back and reconsider.

Informed Decision Making About Prostate-Specific Antigen (PSA) Testing: Findings and Implications from Formative Testing of a Multimodal Intervention Cindy S. Soloe, Lauren A. McCormack, Katherine Treiman, David Driscoll, Shelly Harris, 2009-02-01 We created the You Decide multimodal intervention to provide men with the information skills and reinforcement needed to engage in informed decision making IDM related to prostate cancer screening We developed intervention materials based on three rounds of formative research conducted with 145 members of the intended recipient audience through 10 focus groups and more than 50 individual in depth interviews This report documents key findings from our formative research that may apply to the development of other IDM interventions especially those related to prostate cancer Our findings underscored 1 the difficulty of promoting IDM for cancer screening given people s high affinity for such screenings and 2 the challenge of graphically communicating risk related tradeoffs We found that pretest participants had a preference for full story narratives conveying personal experiences and interpersonal learning opportunities Our formative research findings also supported the need to use plain language to address a range of health literacy levels We describe our efforts to apply these formative research findings in our final intervention materials and discuss implications for future intervention research Our findings underscore the importance of involving the intended audience in the process of developing intervention materials

Impact of a Decision Aid Videotape on Young Women's Attitudes and Knowledge about Hormone Replacement Therapy David Neal Kerner, 1998 The application of medical treatments requires informed consent However lack of knowledge and information processing limitations may limit the ability to make informed decisions Decision aids address these issues and may increase patients ability to make informed choices However little research has examined decision aid effectiveness One difficult decision faced by many women is whether to use hormone replacement therapy HRT which is associated with both potential risks and potential benefits A tool designed to enhance HRT decision making could benefit many women This paper presents the evaluation of an HRT videotape decision aid The paper s primary goals are to 1 examine the impact of the decision aid on treatment relevant knowledge perceived knowledge and perceived ability to make an informed choice about HRT 2 determine the impact of the decision aid on HRT attitude 3 examine whether the decision aid is perceived as useful and 4 evaluate the influence of specific decision aid components on these issues There were three phases to this project First several focus groups were convened to gain better understanding of women s knowledge and attitudes about HRT Next two pilot studies examined how altering the presentation of HRT type information affects preference for hypothetical treatments The third phase involved the evaluation of an HRT decision aid videotape Female college students n 153 were randomly assigned to one of four conditions 1 complete HRT video 2 HRT video with patient testimonials excluded 3 HRT video with decision aid data excluded or 4 a control non HRT video All subjects completed pre and post video questionnaires examining HRT knowledge and attitudes The HRT video was associated with increases in knowledge perceived knowledge and perceived ability to make an informed HRT decision Actual knowledge and perceived knowledge were not related and perceived ability was predicted by perceived knowledge rather than actual knowledge The video was perceived as a useful tool for HRT decision making although it did not increase positive attitude towards HRT Results were similar for each version of the video except that the version without patient testimonials was perceived more negatively Implications of these findings are discussed AHRO Research Activities ,2000-11 Research Activities ,2000-11 Managerial Decision-Making From the Perspectives of Behavioral Science and Neuroscience Wuke Zhang,Peter Ping Li,Jie Yu,Liuting Diao,Senqing Qi,2023-03-03 The Effects of Decision Support System Features on Users' Decision-making Behavior Sidne Gail Ward,1996 Impact of Cancer-related Decision Aids Tim J.
