

Viking funeral

The bowed prow of the mead-hall and the great warriors were particularly distinctive. The dead belongings, including his sword and his horse that had been sacrificed in parallel ceremonies, which were later put into a boat to be incinerated by the warriors. The boat also contained the warrior's weapons and shields together with sufficient food and drink for the journey towards the gods.

With the boat in the water, the warriors of a long party, the dead warrior's personal possessions were placed in the mead-hall, including his weapons, shields, and other items that were part of his life.

The mead-hall was a large hall where the warriors gathered to drink and feast. It was a central place in the Viking community, and it was here that the warriors spent much of their time.
