The architecture features intricate carvings and a multi-tiered roof. The central entrance is framed by a decorative archway. The overall scene is brightly lit, suggesting a sunny day.

Thinking About Religion:

Thinking about Religion Richard L. Purtill, 1978 This introduction to philosophy of religion is aimed at the problems which most interest students As the author explains in his preface Students today have a wide range of perplexities about religion many of them theological or historical rather than philosophical The topics I have covered in this book are those which I have found to create the most interest and cause the most discussion when they have come up in class

Religion Today Ross Aden, 2012-10-18 Introduces students to key concepts in religious studies through a compelling problem solving framework This new textbook features the following dynamic case studies opening each chapter that teach critical thinking skills and engage students in contemporary religious issues such as the intersection of science and religion a wide range of examples from world religions throughout the text clear introductions to classic and contemporary theories of religion both Eastern and Western and chapter summaries that include essential concepts a list of key terms and questions for individual reflection or class discussion Religion today guides students in understanding the complex role that religion plays in the world while also building a solid foundation in both religious studies and problem solving skills

Thinking about Religion Max Schoen, 1946 No other human experience has as many and as significant implications for man's individual and social welfare as that which arises from his need and quest for spiritual values This book is the fruit of many years of thought on this subject

Ways of Thinking about God E. B. Self, 2013-08-01 As we become more deeply involved in thinking about God it would be good to remember that the thinking is about God but is done by humans We should be careful We should not have too high an opinion of our own thinking We might recall the statement of Isaiah 55 8 9 For my thoughts are not your thoughts nor are your ways my ways says the Lord For as the heavens are higher than the earth so are my ways higher than your ways and my thoughts than your thoughts With the reminder that human thinking about God has important limitations we should still try to think about God as carefully as possible

- 1 How can we summarize the beliefs about God in the Bible
- 2 How should we understand the Bible's many references to God and violence
- 3 Can we derive a clear and comprehensive view of God and human destiny from the Bible
- 4 Can we prove the existence of God by reason apart from the Bible
- 5 What views have philosophers had about the basic nature of God
- 6 How can we reconcile belief in God's goodness and unlimited power with the evil in the world
- 7 Is God an appropriate subject for scientists to study
- 8 Should scientific views of time life and space lead us to adjust some of our beliefs about God
- 9 Are our views of God appropriate for the modern world
- 10 Do you believe that you should do some more thinking about God

Aristotle, Oedipus, and Greek Religion Louis F. Groarke,2025-12-02 Aristotle Oedipus and Greek Religion explores an important religious side of ancient Aristotelianism one which has an impact on contemporary philosophical debates Louis F Groarke shows how an exegetical perspective open to and respectful of Greek Pagan religion allows readers to discover a remarkably different Aristotle than the one to which we have grown accustomed To begin with one must discover what Aristotle and his school taught not by examining isolated passages but by getting a sense of his philosophy as a whole One has to make sense of the circumstantial evidence and carefully piece together a coherent technical case for the overall argument In each chapter Groarke considers another aspect of Aristotelian thought this is in opposition to mainstream opinion which often describes Aristotle as a secret atheist an agnostic or as something akin to a modern day positivist or a reductionist The author goes on to show that Aristotle valued religious practice on a personal and social level that his metaphysics are marked by intimations of the divine that he provides an epistemological space for both science and religion that his account of Greek tragedy has an inalienable moral and religious side and that his account of the origins of cognition is not so far removed from religious scripture Aristotle Oedipus and Greek Religion is an analysis of universal themes from the viewpoint of an enormously influential ancient thinker and an adventure into the history of ideas

Thinking about God: Reflections on Conceptions and Misconceptions Stephen M. Lampe,2014-10-07 Dr Stephen Lampe argues that to think about God is not a matter of religion It is simply to follow the natural yearning that is implanted in the human essence Thus the search for the right conception of God is everybody s duty

Dr Lampe's original approach and explanations amount to a paradigm shift in the debate about God. He introduces knowledge that has been lacking in the numerous publications on the idea of God and discusses clearly and directly various conceptions and misconceptions of God, thereby providing unusually rich food for thought for believers as well as atheists. The book rouses the individual believer to re-examine the extent to which his or her faith has a sound basis. After reading this book, academic philosophers and theologians will all have to rethink their approaches and arguments for or against the existence and the nature of God. And atheists will be particularly embarrassed at the all too obvious shallowness of their strongest arguments in the light of Stephen Lampe's elucidation. Stephen Lampe argues that to ask if a person believes in God is meaningless in the absence of a clear elaboration of the nature and attributes of God the questioner has in mind. And any response that does not specify the attributes is certainly trivial. It follows that nothing is gained from the general arguments about belief in God. Dr Lampe shows convincingly that mystery and revelations are real; they are encountered in all endeavours, including in scientific research. Stephen Lampe asks: How can we think rightly about the invisible God if we do not know what we are and why we exist on earth? He provides answers. Religions promote misconceptions of God in some of their doctrines and go against the true Will of God in some of their actions. Thereby they provide ammunition and support for atheism. It is wrong to blame God for the sins committed by religions. God has no need for religions. Stephen Lampe discusses the idea of the Will of God as the mechanism by which God relates to all creatures. He describes and illustrates the Laws of Creation that manifest God's will and asserts that the Will of God is not a matter of religion. Believers generally agree that God is the Creator, but without some basic knowledge of the scope and nature of God's Creation, the conception of God is unlikely to be correct. Dr Lampe therefore presents an outline of Creation and Subsequent Creation in relation to the Realm of God. In the process, he shows that God, unlike every human being, is not spirit and God is beyond Divine. Some scriptures present inconsistent ideas of the attributes and nature of God. To think aright about God, one must seek beyond traditional scriptures. God exercises His Omnipotence only in the light of His Perfection. It is wrong to think that everything is possible with God. God cannot contradict Himself, and He cannot change the past. He can do only what conforms to His immutable laws. The book demonstrates that the Love of God and the Justice of God are inseparable, like two sides of the same coin, and describes other attributes of God in the light of new knowledge. Examples: The Omniscience of God is about wisdom, not petty earthly all-knowing, and Omnipresence means that God is accessible from everywhere and that we cannot escape His reach, but not that He is present everywhere. Formal praying is an attempt to connect oneself invisibly with the streams of power which permeates all Creation and whose ultimate origin is God. Without connection, prayer has no effect. The book explains the idea of miracles and how it is that human beings, alone, not God, are responsible for all the evils in the world. Stephen Lampe notes that science is ignorant of 95 percent of what even the physical universe consists. Therefore, it is unreasonable for science to pontificate about anything beyond the physical, such as God. Stephen Lampe is the author of The Christian and Reincarnation.
