Spiritual Marketplace Wade Clark Roof, Dr, 1999-01-01 In large chain bookstores the religion section is gone and in its place is an expanding number of topics including angels Sufism journey recovery meditation magic inspiration Judaica astrology gurus Bible prophecy evangelicalism Mary Buddhism Catholicism and esoterica As Wade Clark Roof notes such changes over the last two decades reflect a shift away from religion as traditionally understood to more diverse and creative approaches But what does this splintering of the religious perspective say about Americans Have we become more interested in spiritual concerns or have we become lost among trends Do we value personal spirituality over traditional religion and no longer see ourselves united in a larger community of faith Roof first credited this religious diversity to the baby boomers in his bestselling A Generation of Seekers 1993 He returns to interview many of these people now in mid life to reveal a generation with a unique set of spiritual values a generation that has altered our historic interpretations of religious beliefs practices and symbols and perhaps even our understanding of the sacred itself The quest culture created by the baby boomers has generated a marketplace of new spiritual beliefs and practices and of revisited traditions As Roof shows some Americans are exploring faiths and spiritual disciplines for the first time others are rediscovering their lost traditions others are drawn to small groups and alternative communities and still others create their own mix of values and metaphysical beliefs Spiritual Marketplace charts the emergence of five subcultures dogmatists born again Christians mainstream believers metaphysical believers and seekers and secularists Drawing on surveys and in depth interviews for over a decade Roof reports on the religious and spiritual styles family patterns and moral vision and values for each of these subcultures The result is an innovative engaging approach to understanding how religious life is being reshaped as we move into the next century Sculptor Spirit Leopoldo A. Sánchez M., Leopoldo A. Sánchez M., 2019-02-05 Like the work of an artist who molds a lump of clay the Spirit's sanctifying work lies in shaping people into the image of Christ Avoiding either a Spirit only or a Spirit void theology Leopoldo Sánchez carefully crafts a Spirit Christology which considers the role of God's Spirit in the life and mission of Jesus and leads to five distinct models of sanctification that can help Christians discern how the Spirit is at work in our lives

Hero and Deity Quỳnh Phương Phạm, 2009

Hero and Deity is an eloquent and fascinating journey into the world of the worshippers and the cult of Tran Hung Dao. The legendary fourteenth century hero and savior of Vietnam has evolved as a key symbol of the nation as well as an efficacious deity in its spiritual pantheon. Today he is a ubiquitous multivalent symbol of the contradictions of contemporary Vietnamese society. Intertwined with this rich ethnography is a work of self-interrogation and engagement with the author's complex and changing home and with the diverse women and men intellectuals, Communist Party cadres and market sellers alike whose lives are centered to a significant degree around the cult of Saint Tran and other deities. The book is a contribution to the ethnography of Vietnam, cultural studies and Asian studies and also an original and stimulating introduction to contemporary Vietnamese society.

In Search of Authentic Faith Steve Rabey, 2001

Vital lessons from the Postmodern Reformation: How emerging generations are transforming the church. There is no one right way to do church for Generations X and Y and for the generations that will follow. But one thing is certain: The traditional baby boomer church model isn't cutting it for many young people seeking an authentic expression of Christian faith. Now noted author and journalist Steve Rabey takes a close look at the church in the midst of wrenching social, cultural and philosophical changes. Drawing from thorough research and extensive interviews with emerging church leaders, he has written a comprehensive guide to what post-boomer leaders are thinking, doing and trying in order to reach new audiences of largely unchurched but spiritually hungry people. Rabey examines such vital questions as: How can we overcome the inherent distrust young people have toward institutions such as the church? How can worship services provide both an intimate spiritual connection for believers and a winsome spiritual reality for unbelievers? How can the church build relationships with postmodernists who have little use for absolute truth? How can we understand and reach out to the vast array of distinct subcultures among the emerging generations? The emerging generations are yearning for something authentic and compelling. Something satisfying and hopeful. In Search of Authentic Faith provides Christians with fresh insight into these intriguing minds and the hearts behind them and how these new leaders will transform ministry in the twenty-first century.

Religion in the Media Age Stewart M. Hoover, 2006-04-28

Looking at the everyday interaction of religion and media in our cultural lives, Hoover's new book is a fascinating assessment of the state of modern religion. Recent years have produced a marked turn away from institutionalized religions towards more autonomous individual forms of the search for spiritual meaning. Film, television, the music industry and the internet are central to this process, cutting through the monolithic assertions of world religions and giving access to more diverse and fragmented ideals. While the sheer volume and variety of information travelling through global media changes modes of religious thought and commitment, the human desire for spirituality also invigorates popular culture itself recreating commodities film blockbusters world sport and popular music as contexts for religious meanings Drawing on research into household media consumption Hoover charts the way in which media and religion intermingle and collide in the cultural experience of media audiences Religion in the Media Age is essential reading for everyone interested in how today mass media relates to contemporary religious and spiritual life
