Exploring Ancient Textiles Alistair Dickey, Margarita Gleba, Sarah Hitchens, Gabriella Longhitano, 2022-07-20 Over the past 30 years research on archaeological textiles has developed into an important field of scientific study It has greatly benefited from interdisciplinary approaches which combine the application of advanced technological knowledge to ethnographic textual and experimental investigations In exploring textiles and textile processing such as production and exchange in ancient societies archaeologists with different types and quality of data have shared their knowledge thus contributing to well established methodology In this book the papers highlight how researchers have been challenged to adapt or modify these traditional and more recently developed analytical methods to enable extraction of comparable data from often recalcitrant assemblages Furthermore they have applied new perspectives and approaches to extend the focus on less investigated aspects and artefacts The chapters embrace a broad geographical and chronological area ranging from South America and Europe to Africa and from the 11th millennium BC to the 1st millennium AD Methodological considerations are explored through the medium of three different themes focusing on tools textiles and fibres and culture and identity This volume constitutes a reflection on the status of current methodology and its applicability within the wider textile field Moreover it drives forward the methodological debates around textile research to generate new and stimulating conversations about the future of textile archaeology

A Brief Guide to the Cataloguing of Archaeological Textiles Penelope Walton, Gillian Eastwood, 1988 Ancient Textiles Marie-Louise Nosch, C. Gillis, 2007-03-10 An understanding of textiles and the role they played in the past is important for anyone interested in past societies Textiles served and in fact still do as both functional and symbolic items The evidence for ancient textiles in Europe is split quite definitely along a north south divide with an abundance of actual examples in the north but precious little in the south where indirect evidence comes from such things as vase painting and frescoes This volume brings together these two schools to look in more detail at textiles in the ancient world and is based on a conference held in Denmark and Sweden in March 2003 Section one Production and Organisation takes a chronological look through more than four thousand years of history from Syria in the mid third millennium BC to Seventeenth Century Germany Section two Crafts and Technology focuses on the relationship between the primary producer the craftsman and the secondary receiver the archaeologist conservator The third section Society examines the symbolic nature of textiles and their place within ancient societal groups Throughout the book emphasis is placed on the universality of textiles and the importance of information exchange between scholars from different disciplines A small book on finds First Aid for the Excavation of Archaeological Textiles is included as an Appendix Northern Archaeological Textiles Frances Pritchard, John Peter Wild, 2015-04-30 This volume presents the papers from the seventh North European Symposium for Archaeological Textiles NESAT held in Edinburgh in 1999 The themes covered demonstrate a variety of scholarship that will encourage anyone working in this important and stimulating area of archaeology From the golden robes of a Roman burial to the fashionable Viking in Denmark through to the early modern period and more technological aspects of textile research these twenty four papers five of which are in German provide a wealth of new information on the study of ancient textiles in northern Europe NESAT X Eva B. Andersson Strand, 2010 The NESAT symposium has grown from the first meeting in 1981 which was attended by 23 scholars to over 100 at the tenth meeting that took place in Copenhagen in 2008 with virtually all areas of Europe represented The 50 papers from the conference presented here show the vibrance of the study of archaeological textiles today Examples studied come from the Bronze Age Neolithic the Iron Age Roman Viking the Middle Ages and post Medieval and from a wide range of countries including Norway Czech Republic Poland Greece Germany Lithuania Estonia and the Netherlands Modern techniques of analysis and examination are also discussed First Aid for the Excavation of Archaeological Textiles C. Gillis, Marie-Louise Nosch, 2007-03-10 This small booklet is an important conservation guide It deals with the special care required in order to deal with these delicate fabrics during their excavation and recording It is included as an appendix in Ancient Textiles Production Crafts and Society Prehistoric, Ancient Near Eastern and Aegean Textiles and Dress Mary Harlow, Cécile Michel, Marie-Louise Nosch, 2015 Textiles and Textile Production in Europe from Prehistory to AD 400 Margarita Gleba, Ulla Mannering, 2019-10-05 There is evidence that ever since early prehistory textiles have always had more than simply a utilitarian function Textiles express who we are our gender age family affiliation occupation religion ethnicity and social political economic and legal status Besides expressing our identity textiles protect us from the harsh conditions of the environment whether as clothes or shelter We use them at birth for swaddling in illness as bandages and at death as shrouds We use them to carry and contain people and things We use them for subsistence to catch fish and animals and for transport as sails In fact textiles represent one of the earliest human craft technologies and they have always been a fundamental part of subsistence economy and exchange Textiles have an enormous potential in archaeological research to inform us of social chronological and cultural aspects of ancient societies In archaeology the study of textiles is often relegated to the marginalized zone of specialist and specialized subject and lack of dialogue between textile researchers and scholars in other fields means that as a resource textiles are not used to their full potential or integrated into the overall interpretation of a particular site or broader aspects of human activity Textiles and Textile Production in Europe is a major new survey that aims to redress this Twenty three chapters collect and systematize essential information on textiles and textile production from sixteen European countries resulting in an up to date and detailed sourcebook and an easily accessible overview of the development of European textile technology and economy from prehistory to AD 400 All chapters have an introduction give the chronological and cultural background and an overview of the material in question organized chronologically and thematically The sources of information used by the authors are primarily textiles and textile tools recovered from archaeological contexts In addition other evidence for the study of ancient textile production ranging from iconography to written sources to palaeobotanical and archaeozoological remains are included The introduction gives a summary on textile preservation analytical techniques and production sequence that provides a background for the terminology and issues discussed in the various chapters Extensively illustrated with over 200 color illustrations maps chronologies and index this will be an essential sourcebook not just for textile researchers but also the wider archaeological community
