Thieving Sugar Omise'eke Natasha Tinsley, 2010-08-18 In Thieving Sugar Omise'eke Natasha Tinsley explores the poetry and prose of Caribbean women writers revealing in their imagery a rich tradition of erotic relations between women. She takes the book's title from Dionne Brand's novel In Another Place Not Here where eroticism between women is likened to the sweet and subversive act of cane cutters stealing sugar. The natural world is repeatedly reclaimed and reinterpreted to express love between women in the poetry and prose that Tinsley analyzes. She not only recuperates stories of Caribbean women loving women stories that have been ignored or passed over by postcolonial and queer scholarship until now she also shows how those erotic relations and their literary evocations form a poetics and politics of decolonization. Tinsley's interpretations of twentieth century literature by Dutch English and French speaking women from the Caribbean take into account colonialism migration labor history violence and revolutionary politics. Throughout Thieving Sugar Tinsley connects her readings to contemporary matters such as neoimperialism and international LGBT and human rights discourses. She explains too how the texts that she examines intervene in black feminist queer and postcolonial studies particularly when she highlights the cultural limitations of the metaphors that dominate queer theory in North America and Europe including those of the closet and coming out.

Goddesses and Heroines Jean Menzies, 2023-07-11 A beautifully illustrated collection of profiles and stories of women from religion and myth retold for children. Managing Diversity and Equality in Construction Andrew W. Gale, Marilyn J. Davidson, 2006-07-28 With women in the UK construction industry constituting just thirteen per cent of the workforce and black and Asian workers numbering less than two per cent despite representing more than six per cent of the working population diversity is a problem that the construction industry needs to tackle directly. In this title diversity management is presented as an opportunity for the construction industry. Work is presented from several different countries and regions in North America Australia and Europe to provide a comprehensive picture of this complex and often sensitive issue. Going beyond the traditional topics of gender and racial discrimination contributions encompass a wide range of diversity issues facing the construction industry including sexual orientation disability and the work life balance. Essential reading for construction managers and a valuable resource.

for post graduate researchers this key title provides not only a thorough exposition of contemporary research but also supplies the practical diagnostic tools and techniques to successfully manage diversity in construction and the information to adhere to the law
