Burman, 2010-12-01 Few issues in tax policy are as divisive as the capital gains tax Should capital gains the increase in value of assets such as stocks or businesses be taxed at all If so when should they be taxed when they are earned or when they are realized Should taxes be adjusted for inflation And should gains be taxed at both the individual and corporate levels In this book Leonard Burman cuts through the political rhetoric to present the facts about capital gains He begins by explaining the complex rules that govern the taxation of capital gains examines the kinds of assets that produce them and the factors that can lead to gains or losses He then reviews the effects of capital gains taxation on saving and investment and considers the arguments for and against indexing capital gains taxes for inflation as well as other options for altering the current system Rethinking Housing Bubbles Steven D. Gjerstad, Vernon L. Smith, 2014-05-12 In this highly original piece of work Steven D Gjerstad and Nobel Laureate Vernon L Smith analyze the role of housing and its associated mortgage financing as a key element of economic cycles The authors combine data from both laboratory and real markets to provide insight into the bubble propensity of real world economic actors and use novel historical analysis on the Great Recession the Great Depression and all of the post World War II recessions to establish the critical roles of housing private capital investment and household and private institutional balance sheets in economic cycles They develop a model that incorporates household balance sheets and bank balance sheets and offers insights based on this analysis concerning policy going forward effectively changing the way economists think about economic cycles
