Media Literacy Around the World Robert Kubey,2018-10-24 At the dawn of the twenty first century education about and through the media has become a worldwide phenomenon and is playing an increasingly important role in educational reform

The theory and practice of media education have profited greatly from recent and intensive development and application of new information and telecommunications technologies. Consequently the importance of media and information literacy is taking on an even greater urgency. With this in mind the contributors to this volume survey what has taken place over the last decade in different parts of the world, examine the current state of theoretical, conceptual and research development and consider where media education is going and where it ought to go. With two thirds of its 22 contributions coming from outside the United States, Media Literacy around the World is a genuine international effort with many leading media and information educators in the world taking part. The work converts the notion of globalism from a slogan into a working hypothesis. The concerns in this volume are with literacy not just in computer technology but as a broad concern of the educational process.

Media Economics Colin Hoskins, Stuart McFadyen, Adam Finn, 2004-06-21 Hoskins, McFadyen and Finn de-dismalise economics. Their book is clearly written, full of cogent and apposite examples and analyses persuasively what makes media and communications like and unlike other economic sectors. From network externality to public good, from experience goods to superstars, from dumping to quotas, they lucidly guide the reader through the tangles of the new economy and why it now matters less if maids burn books. Eat your heart out Thomas Carlyle, Richard E. Collins. The Open University U.K. How does the Internet affect the supply of information-based entertainment and cultural goods? Why do telephone companies have peak and off-peak prices for long distance calls? Why is broadcasting but not newspaper publishing usually regulated and sometimes subsidized?

Media Economics: Applying Economics to New and Traditional Media provides a thorough foundation of the microeconomic principles and concepts needed to understand media industries and issues in the converging media environment. Media Economics differs from ordinary media economic texts by taking a conceptual approach to economic issues. As the book progresses through economic principles, authors Colin Hoskins, Stuart McFadyen and Adam Finn use cases and examples to demonstrate how these principles can be used to analyze media issues and problems. Media Economics emphasizes economic concepts that have distinct application within media industries, including corporate media strategies and mergers, public policy within media industries, how industry structure and changing technologies affect the conduct and performance of media industries, and why the United States dominates trade in information and entertainment.

Key Features Chapter opening vignettes introduce the issues analyzed in each chapter. Concise definitions of key terms for a clear understanding of basic microeconomic and managerial economic concepts. Examples from a variety of media industries, including those in the United States, Canada, the United Kingdom, and Australia. A concept-driven approach enabling a longer shelf life as technologies, structures, and revenues change. A recognition of the reality of convergence and consolidation in media industries rather than addressing each media outlet individually. Media Economics assumes no prior background in economics and is designed for undergraduate and graduate students studying media economics and media industries. The book is an ideal text for public policy and the media, as well as media and society.

Reporting Elections Stephen Cushion, Richard Thomas, 2018-03-02 How elections are reported has important implications for the health of democracy and informed citizenship But how informative are the news media during campaigns What kind of logic do they follow How well do they serve citizens e Based on original research as well as the most comprehensive assessment of election studies to date Cushion and Thomas examine how campaigns are reported in many advanced Western democracies In doing so they engage with debates about the mediatization of politics media systems information environments media ownership regulation political news horserace journalism objectivity impartiality agenda setting and the relationship between media and democracy more generally Focusing on the most recent US and UK election campaigns they consider how the logic of election coverage could be rethought in ways that better serve the democratic needs of citizens Above all they argue that election reporting should be driven by a public logic where the agenda of voters takes centre stage in the campaign and the policies of respective political parties receive more airtime and
