Codes, Ciphers and Spies John F. Dooley, 2016-03-31 When the United States declared war on Germany in April 1917 it was woefully unprepared to wage a modern war Whereas their European counterparts already had three years of experience in using code and cipher systems in the war American cryptologists had to help in the building of a military intelligence unit from scratch This book relates the personal experiences of one such character providing a uniquely American perspective on the Great War It is a story of spies coded letters plots to blow up ships and munitions plants secret inks arms smuggling treason and desperate battlefield messages Yet it all begins with a college English professor and Chaucer scholar named John Mathews Manly In 1927 John Manly wrote a series of articles on his service in the Code and Cipher Section MI 8 of the U S Army s Military Intelligence Division MID during World War I Published here for the first time enhanced with references and annotations for additional context these articles form the basis of an exciting exploration of American military intelligence and counter espionage in 1917 1918 Illustrating the thoughts of prisoners of war draftees German spies and ordinary Americans with secrets to hide the messages deciphered by Manly provide a fascinating insight into the state of mind of a nation at war The German Spy System from Within William Le Queux, 2020-09-28 The amazing ramifications of the German spy system in England are unfortunately not even to day fully realised by the British public or admitted by the Government In face of the hard facts contained in this book in face of the serious statements of Members in the House of Commons and in face of what the public are themselves daily reporting to the authorities the present apathy of the Government and its refusal to admit the peril and deal with spies with a firm hand is little short of criminal Seven years before the outbreak of war by a mere accident while in Germany I was able to place before the Intelligence Department of the War Office certain facts which on being thoroughly investigated resulted in the establishment of a department for contra espionage Therefore however lightly the Government may to day affect to treat the question the fact remains that they have all along known of the existence of a horde of German secret agents in our midst Nevertheless even as recently as March 3 the Government in response to urgent appeals blankly refused to vest in one Minister powers to deal with enemy aliens and spies in place of the present divided policy Truly deplorable it is to think that to day while we are fighting for our very existence as a nation spies are permitted entire freedom and are nobody s business This most vital question has been shuttle cocked between the War Office and the Home Office until it is now impossible to say where the responsibility really lies The one fact however which cannot be disguised from the public is that if the Germans made a raid upon our shores the Government so self satisfied would suddenly awake to find as France and Belgium did an army of spies busily assisting in our undoing Ex Intelligence Officer has within the covers of this book plainly shown how systematic espionage is and that it has been for many years a most cherished part of German war administration developed with much forethought and with characteristic Teuton cunning That a settled and widespread system of spies exists in Great Britain at the present moment is well known both to the Government and to the public yet certain Ministers would have us close our eyes and accept the extraordinary assurance given by Mr McKenna early in the war that the spy peril has been stamped out But is it stamped out I here assert that at no moment of our national history have we been confronted by a graver peril from within than that with which we are confronted to day The public are daily realising more and more that they are being hoodwinked and bamboozled by this shuttlecock policy which is playing so completely into the enemy s hands and is allowing dastardly preparations to be made to hasten our downfall The inflamed state of public opinion is only too apparent by the mass of correspondence which I have received from all classes from peers to working men regarding the publication of my book German Spies in England and further by its phenomenal sale Every letter of the piles before me as I write complains bitterly of the apathy and disregard with which the authorities treat the reports made to them of the doings of spies and all express disgust at the refusal to stir in a matter which so closely affects our national security or even to institute the smallest inquiry Issues and Events ,1915 Deception Edward Lucas, 2012-06-19 If you think
