God's Beauty-in-Act Stephen M. Garrett,2013-07-24 Jurgen Moltmann and others contend that Christian theology and the church face a dual crisis one of relevance and the other of identity Despite making this pronouncement nearly forty years ago the church in the West continues to struggle with this crisis Several proposals have been espoused from the way of wisdom to the way of ecclesial praxis Yet little attention is given in Protestant theological discourse to the role God s beauty plays in bringing theology and ethics together By neglecting God s beauty for theological discourse we risk diminishing Christian worship witness and wisdom God s Beauty in Act addresses these issues in part by arguing that the redemptive creative suffering and glorious resurrection of Christ are the nexus of God s being beauty and Christian living God s beauty understood as the fittingness of the incarnate Son s actions in the Spirit to the Father s will radiates God s glory and draws perceivers into the dramatic movements of God s triune life These movements serve as the patterns that shape the imagination enabling participants to perform their parts creatively and fittingly in God s drama of redemption In doing so human beings flourish as they jettison false identities and realities of their own making that are incommensurate with God s purpose found in Christ by the Spirit

Jensen,2016-03-31 One of the most persistent slogans of Reformed theology is that it is reformed and always being reformed But what does this slogan mean This volume gathers thirteen essays written by a younger generation of Reformed theologians who teach and write on five different continents who together offer this work in Christian systematic theology Unlike many other works of Reformed theology however this book is framed by pressing contextual issues and questions instead of traditional loci Each chapter engages classical doctrine but does so through the lens of contemporary lived experience in particular contexts The result is not a theology where doctrines are applied to contexts but an approach where doctrine and context mutually shape one another The contributors take seriously the notion that theology is always being reformed and is always partial ever on the way hence it requires conversation partners beyond the Reformed family of faith The result is a study in Reformed theology that is thoroughly ecumenical
