Albrecht,1973 Successful Software Reengineering Valenti, Salvatore,2001-07-01 Software process reengineering has become highly visible over the past several years Efforts are being undertaken by organizations of all types and sizes as they attempt to deal with the challenges of quality complexity and competitiveness As an emerging technology the effectiveness and potential impact of process improvement efforts have been debated but not fully tested or validated At the very core of this technological evolution is the idea that the quality of a software product is highly dependent on the quality of the process used for its development Successful Software Reengineering examines the most recent theories models approaches and processes involved with the concept of software improvement and reengineering Human Evoked Potentials Dietrich Lehmann,2013-03-08 From August 25 28 1978 a conference on averaged evoked po tentials was held at Konstanz West Germany Research on human evoked potentials has progressed rapidly in the past decade and a series of international conferences have served to maintain com munication between active workers in the field Among the organiza tions that have a tradition of supporting such mUlti national com munication are the North Atlantic Treaty Organization Scientific Affairs Division the u s Office of Naval Research and the German Research Society Deutsche Forschungsgemeinschaft We have been fortunate to have the support of all three In the early stages of planning a committee was formed composed of Professors Rudolph Cohen Konstanz Otto Creutzfeldt Goettingen John Desmedt Brussels A M Halliday London Anthony Remond Paris and Herbert Vaughan New York A call for papers was circulated as widely as possible and this committee carried out the difficult task of selecting a limited number of participants from a large number of excellent abstracts At the same time Professor Cohen of the University of Konstanz was generous enough to shoulder the task of playing host to the conference His thoughtful arrangements contributed enormously to the comfort of the participants He and his colleagues also engi neered an ideal ambience for sharing of ideas and observations while the University of Konstanz generously provided audio visual support Strategic International Management Dirk Morschett,Hanna Schramm-Klein,Joachim Zentes,2011-02-04 Strategic International Management takes a global perspective and covers the major aspects of international business strategies the coordination of international companies and the particularities of international value chain activities and management functions The book provides a thorough understanding of how Production Sourcing Research Development Marketing Human Resource Management and Controlling have to be designed in an international company and what models are available to understand those activities in an international context The book offers 20 lessons

“Temporal Sampling” and Developmental Dyslexia: Towards an Over-Arching Theoretical Framework Usha Goswami, Alan Power, Marie Lallier, Andrea Facchetti, 2015-04-01 Children with developmental dyslexia fail to acquire efficient reading and spelling skills despite adequate tuition and an absence of overt sensory and or neural deficits Learning to read and spell requires linguistic skills auditory skills and visual skills Oscillatory temporal sampling theory links the development of sensory and linguistic processes The auditory system samples acoustic information at different temporal rates which for speech processing suggests that temporal information encoded by delta theta and gamma oscillations is bound together in the final speech percept Temporal sampling theory proposed a possible deficit in dyslexia in auditory sampling of the speech signal at syllable relevant rates 10 Hz delta and theta This would hypothetically affect prosodic development prior to reading and syllable based parsing which would affect efficient linguistic skills and consequently reading development across languages The visual system also samples information in the visuo spatial field In theory atypical visual oscillatory sampling could therefore be related to some of the visual features of developmental dyslexia In this special issue we bring together visual and auditory sensory processing studies around the general theme of oscillatory temporal sampling Contributors were encouraged to discuss their findings within a temporal sampling perspective The resulting studies cover a wide range of sensory processes with findings both supporting and contradicting the theory It is also important to note that studies covered a wide range of languages and that the behavioural manifestations of a sampling impairment may differ both with language and over the course of development Nevertheless it is encouraging to see such diverse findings considered within a single theoretical framework even if at the same time it is apparent that an over arching theoretical framework encompassing both visual and auditory deficits in dyslexia is yet to be achieved Challenges in Attributes of Success in a Challenging Information Processing Environment, 2007 By using graph theoretic techniques to compare the information processing behaviors of three groups of mid level working professionals as each undertakes a series of four complex interdependent computer mediated decision making exercises this thesis explores 1 the relationship between network centrality and individual performance and 2 the relationship between network density and group performance The results of this exploration though mostly inconclusive call into question both intuition and social network analysis literature It is predicted that centrality in a network correlates positively with high performance among individuals but statistical analysis of data collected during controlled experimentation reveal an almost negligible relationship It is also hypothesized that high density groups outperform low density groups but density and performance are found to correlate in exactly the opposite direction as density increases group performance decreases As an explanation this thesis proposes that as network density increases actors require more time to process and respond to incoming information In as much as central actors possess a greater number of edges i e communication linkages to others this thesis also argues that centrality in a network has costs as well as benefits Further experimentation is needed to test the validity of these conjectures and bring better understanding to Organization Theory Social Network Analysis and Information Processing networks
