The Essence Of Reparations:

The Essence of Reparations Amiri Baraka, 2003 African American Studies Baraka sees the struggle for reparations not as an end in itself but as part of a wider struggle for full citizenship and equal rights in a program for genuine democratic transformation in the United States In this context he poses issues that go way beyond the challenges of reparations One does not have to agree with his ideological framework to appreciate the timeliness and urgency of his case for reparations

Reparation for Victims of Crimes against Humanity Jo-Anne Wemmers, 2014-05-30 Each year countless people fall victim to crimes against humanity These include widespread occurrences of systematic murder torture rape disappearances forced deportation and political persecution Crimes against humanity constitute an attack on human dignity and as such they violate the human rights of the victim as well as the laws of humanity In recent years following the creation of the International Criminal Court there has been a growing interest in the prosecution of offenders and in particular in reparation following crimes against humanity While such measures are meant to provide justice for victims victims are often forgotten or lost in legal debates about what constitutes reparation and who is eligible to receive it This book reaches beyond the boundaries of law and psychology and takes a multidisciplinary approach to the question of reparation for victims of crimes against humanity Law does not take place in a vacuum and it is important to consider the impact of the law on the psychology of the victim as well as the legal principles themselves Herein lies the originality of this book which bridges the gaps between psychology victimology criminology and law and will be of key interest to academics and students engaged in the study of these areas

The Economist , 1922 Reparation for Victims of Armed Conflict Cristián Correa, Shuichi Furuya, Clara Sandoval, 2020-12-17 Are victims of armed conflict entitled to reparation which legal rules govern the question and how can reparation be implemented These key questions of transitional justice are examined by three scholars whose professional theoretical and methodological backgrounds and outlooks differ greatly They discuss how regional human rights case law international criminal law the practice of ad hoc international bodies and domestic practice give rise to a right to reparation This right emerges out of the interplay between international and domestic law The problems of mass claims fragile statehood and the high risk of marginalisation of particular groups of victims are addressed The analysis is alert to the current backlash against international legal institutions and to the practical constraints in making post conflict law work The multiperspectivism of the dialogical setting exposes the divergence and complementarity of the authors approaches and leads to a richer understanding of the law of reparation
