The Facts Of Reconstruction:

Facts of Reconstruction John Roy Lynch, 1914 Money for Retirement Martin Spring, 1988 The Facts of Reconstruction Eric Anderson, Alfred A. Moss, Jr., 1991-05-01

Thirty years after the publication of John Hope Franklin's influential interpretative essay Reconstruction After the Civil War ten distinguished scholars have contributed to a new appraisal of Reconstruction scholarship. Recognizing Professor Franklin's major contributions to the study of the Reconstruction era their work of analysis and review has been dedicated to him. Although most of the contributors studied with John Hope Franklin The Facts of Reconstruction is not a festschrift at least not the conventional sense. The book does not offer a comprehensive assessment of Franklin's remarkably wide ranging work in southern and Afro American history but instead engages his influential interpretation of Reconstruction. The essays in The Facts of Reconstruction focus upon questions raised in Reconstruction After the Civil War. Was southern white intransigence the decisive influence in Presidential Reconstruction? What as the role of violence in southern redemption? How successful were the educational experiments of the Reconstruction era? Why did southern Republicans fail to build an effective coalition capable of surviving the pressure of racism? In addition several essays discuss questions not directly addressed in Franklin's book since his pathbreaking work indirectly stimulated study in a variety of new areas. For example contributors to The Facts of Reconstruction examine the ante bellum origins of Reconstruction evaluate the development of racial segregation during the late nineteenth century analyze the political and legal ideas behind the Reconstruction debates and study the prospering minority among blacks. Representing a variety of perspectives the authors have sought to follow John Hope Franklin's admonition that Reconstruction should not be used as a mirror of ourselves. If they have succeeded this book in honor of a profound scholar and inspiring teacher will provoke new discussion about the facts of Reconstruction.

The Facts of Reconstruction by John R Lynch. The year 1866 was an eventful one in the history of this country. A bitter war was in progress between Congress and President Andrew Johnson over the question of the reconstruction of the States lately in rebellion against the National Government. The President had inaugurated a policy of his own that proved to be very unpopular at the North. He had pardoned nearly all the leaders in the rebellion through the medium of amnesty proclamations. In each rebel State he had appointed a provisional governor under whose direction Legislatures State officers and members of Congress had been chosen and the Legislatures thus chosen elected the United States Senators for the Southern States in accordance with the President's plan of reconstruction. To make restoration to the Union full and complete nothing remained to be done but to admit to their seats the Senators and Representatives that had been chosen. In the mean time these different Legislatures had enacted laws which virtually re enslaved those that had been emancipated in their respective States. For this the North would not stand. Sentiment in that section demanded not only justice and fair treatment for the newly emancipated race but also an emancipation that should be thorough and complete.

not merely theoretical and nominal The fact was recognized and appreciated that the colored people had been loyal to the Union and faithful to the flag of their country and that they had rendered valuable assistance in putting down the rebellion From a standpoint of gratitude if not of justice the sentiment of the North at that time was in favor of fair play for the colored people of the South But the President would not yield to what was generally believed to be the dominant sentiment of the North on the question of reconstruction He insisted that the leaders of the Republican party in Congress did not represent the true sentiment of the country so he boldly determined to antagonize the leaders in Congress and to present their differences to the court of public opinion at the approaching Congressional elections The issue was thus joined and the people were called upon to render judgment in the election of members of Congress in the fall of 1866 The President with the solid support of the Democrats and a small minority of the Republicans made a brave and gallant fight The result however was a crushing defeat for him and a national repudiation of his plan of reconstruction We are delighted to publish this classic book as part of our extensive Classic Library collection Many of the books in our collection have been out of print for decades and therefore have not been accessible to the general public The aim of our publishing program is to facilitate rapid access to this vast reservoir of literature and our view is that this is a significant literary work which deserves to be brought back into print after many decades The contents of the vast majority of titles in the Classic Library have been scanned from the original works To ensure a high quality product each title has been meticulously hand curated by our staff Our philosophy has been guided by a desire to provide the reader with a book that is as close as possible to ownership of the original work We hope that you will enjoy this wonderful classic work and that for you it becomes an enriching experience

FACTS OF RECONSTRUCTION John R. Lynch, 2017-03-10 The author of this book is one of the few remaining links in the chain by which the present generation is connected with the reconstruction period the most important and eventful period in our country's history What is herein recorded is based upon the author's own knowledge contact and experience Very much of course has been written and published about reconstruction but most of it is superficial and unreliable and besides nearly all of it has been written in such a style and tone as to make the alleged facts related harmonize with what was believed to be demanded by public sentiment The author of this work has endeavored to present facts as they were and are rather than as he would like to have them and to set them down without the slightest regard to their effect upon the public mind except so far as that mind may be influenced by the truth the whole truth and nothing but the truth In his efforts along these lines he has endeavored to give expression to his ideas opinions and convictions in language that is moderate and devoid of bitterness and entirely free from race prejudice sectional animosity or partisan bias Whether or not he has succeeded in doing so he is willing to leave to the considerate judgment and impartial decision of those who may take the time to read what is here recorded In writing what is to be found in these pages the author has made no effort to draw upon the imagination nor to gratify the wishes of those whose chief ambition is to magnify the faults and deficiencies in some and to extol the good and commendable traits and qualities in others In other words his chief purpose has been to furnish the readers and students of the present generation with a true candid and impartial statement of material and important facts based upon his own personal knowledge and experience with such comments as in his judgment the occasion and circumstances warranted

The Seamen's Journal, 1919 History as a Science and the System of the Sciences Thomas M. Seebohm, 2015-04-09
This volume goes beyond presently available phenomenological analyses based on the structures and constitution of the lifeworld It shows how the science of history is the mediator between the human and the natural sciences It demonstrates that the distinction between interpretation and explanation does not imply a strict separation of the natural and the human sciences Finally it shows that the natural sciences and technology are inseparable but that technology is one sidedly founded in pre scientific encounters with reality in the lifeworld In positivism the natural sciences are sciences because they offer causal explanations testable in experiments and the humanities are human sciences only if they use methods of the natural sciences For epistemologists following Dilthey the human sciences presuppose interpretation and the human and natural sciences must be separated There is phenomenology interested in psychology and the social sciences that distinguish the natural and the human sciences but little can be found about the historical human sciences This volume fills the gap by presenting analyses of the material foundations of the understanding of expressions of other persons and of primordial recollections and expectations founding explicit expectations and predictions in the lifeworld Next it shows on the basis of history as applying philological methods in interpretations of sources the role of a universal spatio temporal framework for reconstructions and causal explanations of what has really happened Carpenter, 1919 Just the Facts David T.Z. Mindich, 1998-11 If American journalism were a religion then its supreme deity would be objectivity Although it has remained the orbital sun of all journalistic ethics objectivity until now has had no biographer David Mindich here journeys back to the nineteenth century to recover the lost history and meaning of this central tenet of American journalism His book draws on a number of high profile cases that show the degree to which journalism and the evolving journalistic commitment to objectivity altered and in some cases limited the public's understanding of events and issues Through this subtle combination of history and cultural criticism Mindich provides a profound meditation on the structure promise and limits of objectivity in the age of cybermedia Annals of the American Academy of Political and Social Science, 1915 Monthly Bulletin St. Louis Public Library, 1921 Teachers bulletin vol 4 issued as part of v 23 no 9 The Crisis, 1969 Monthly Bulletin.
