Gaarder, 2011-02-19 Animal rights is one of the fastest growing social movements today Women greatly outnumber men as activists yet surprisingly little has been written about the importance and impact of gender on the movement Women and the Animal Rights Movement combats stereotypes of women activists as mere sentimentalists by exploring the political and moral character of their advocacy on behalf of animals Emily Gaarder analyzes the politics of gender in the movement incorporating in depth interviews with women and participant observation of animal rights organizations conferences and protests to describe struggles over divisions of labor and leadership Controversies over PETA advertising campaigns that rely on women's sexuality to sell animal rights illustrate how female crusaders are asked to prioritize the cause of animals above all else Gaarder underscores the importance of a paradigm shift in the animal liberation movement one that seeks a more integrated vision of animal rights that connects universally to other issues gender race economics and the environment highlighting that many women activists recognize and are motivated by the connection between the oppression of animals and other social injustices

Studies, Institute for Laboratory Animal Research, Board on Agriculture and Natural Resources, Committee on the Review of the Smithsonian Institution's National Zoological Park, 2005-11-27 This report follows up on an interim report released in February 2004 that focused on immediate needs in the areas of animal care and management recordkeeping and pest control The report finds that the zoo has made good faith efforts to correct deficiencies noted in the interim report and has made some noticeable improvements in the past year in zoo operations and animal care However problems in areas such as staff training workplace culture and strategic planning still need to be addressed Specifically the report recommends that the zoo immediately develop and implement animal care training programs to ensure that people who are directly responsible for the well being of its animal collection are adequately prepared and competent The report commends a zoo initiated strategic planning process as a positive step but recommends it contain a more detailed comprehensive strategy of how it will meet short term goals and that it should link plans to upgrade facilities with those to acquire animals The zoo should also focus on improving communication among keepers veterinarians nutritionists senior managers and curators
