The Role of Functions in Syntax Zygmunt Frajzyngier,Erin Shay,2016-03-10 The main aim of this book is to address a fundamental question in linguistics namely why languages are similar and why they are different The study proposes that languages are fundamentally similar when they encode the same meanings in their grammatical systems and that languages are different when they encode different meanings Even if languages encode the same meaning they may differ with respect to the formal means used to code those meanings This approach allows for a typology based on functional domains subdomains and functions coded in individual languages The outcome of the study is a unified approach to language theory linguistic typology and descriptive linguistics The argumentation for the hypotheses and the proposed approach is supported by analyses of data from more than a dozen languages including English Polish French Wandala Mina Hdi and several other Chadic languages The study is accessible to a wide variety of linguists

Supernatural Out of the Box Lisa Macklem,Dominick Grace,2020-07-31 Supernatural is one of the most successful horror TV shows ever providing fifteen seasons of the adventures of Dean and Sam Winchester as they hunt monsters and save the world It has nurtured a passionate fan base which has been far more directly integrated into the show than is typical Wry and self aware Supernatural repeatedly breaks out of the televisual box to acknowledge its fans and its own fictionality Though there have already been several studies of Supernatural this volume is the first to focus extensively and intensively on the show s metafictional elements This essay collection argues that Supernatural is not merely a horror show but is a show about how horror works as a genre and how fans interact with their favorite material From exploring how the show has equated authorship with divinity to considering its incorporation of fandom and closely reading several key episodes the essays in this volume seek to examine the multiple layers of textuality found in Supernatural

Memory and the Self Mark Rowlands, 2016-10-14 The idea that our memories in some sense make us who we are is a common one and not at all implausible After all what could make us who we are if not the things we have experienced thought felt and desired on these idiosyncratic pathways through space and time that we call lives And how can we retain these experiences thoughts feelings and desires if not through memory On the other hand most of what we have experienced has been forgotten And there is now a considerable body of evidence that suggests that even when we think we remember our memories are likely to be distorted sometimes beyond recognition Imagine writing your autobiography only to find that that most of it has been redacted and much of the rest substantially rewritten What would hold this book together What would make it the unified and coherent account of a life The answer Mark Rowlands argues lies partially hidden in a largely unrecognized form of memory Rilkean memory A Rilkean memory is produced when the content of a memory is lost but the act of remembering endures in a new mutated form a mood a feeling or a behavioral disposition Rilkean memories play a significant role in holding the self together in the face of the poverty and inaccuracy of the contents of memory But Rilkean memories are important not just because of what they are but also because of what they were before they became such memories Acts of remembering sculpt the contents of memories out of the slabs of remembered episodes Our acts of remembering ensure that we are in the content of each of our memories present in the way a sculptor is present in his creation even when this content is lamentably sparse and endemically inaccurate
