The Christian Religion in Its Doctrinal Expression Edgar Young Mullins,1917 The Christian Religion in Its Doctrinal Expression (Classic Reprint) Edgar Young Mullins,2015-07-11 Excerpt from The Christian Religion in Its Doctrinal Expression Several reasons have led the writer to prepare the present work on theology He has been a teacher of the subject during the past eighteen years His own method and standpoint in dealing with truth have as a natural consequence taken definite form Theology is like any other science in the fact that if it is alive it grows This does not mean that it goes beyond Christ and the New Testament It means rather that these are provocative of endless growth The object of religion does not grow but the subject never attains a final and static stage in the present life Truth does not change but we apprehend truth with increasing clearness Down to the middle of the nineteenth century after Luther s age theology was engaged chiefly with the issues growing out of the Reformation The method of theology was that derived from a past age Theologies were comprehensive more or less philosophical and abstract treatises There was a very commendable desire to systematize the truths of Christianity But too often the biblical method and aim were sacrificed in the interest of a school of theology or a philosophical principle For example Arminianism overlooked certain essential truths about God in its strong championship of human freedom As against it Calvinism ran to extremes in some of its conclusions in its very earnest desire to safeguard the truth of God s sovereignty We are learning to discard both names and to adhere more closely than either to the Scriptures while retaining the truth in both systems During the nineteenth century the whole world of human thought underwent a remarkable revolution In physical science a new method and ideal arose In the social and economic sphere a new sociology and political economy took shape About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works The Christian Religion in Its Doctrinal Expression Edgar Young Mullins,1959 The Christian Religion in Its Doctrinal Expression Edgar Young Mullins,2020-02-27 The doctrines of Christianity span the spiritual teachings of Jesus and the moral tenets of faith as expressed in the Bible and taught to believers for millennia As the author keenly demonstrates the auspices of Christianity span far and wide from the teachings of Jesus through to the manifestation of sins to His salvation of believers who steadfast and unyielding in their faith What constitutes a moral Christian character and the psychological aspects of leading a Christian life are examples of topics tackled in this all embracing work The role of prophecy and revelation the Holy Trinity and the various ways God makes Himself known in the lives of believers are examined Edgar Young Mullins worked as a

Bible teacher for decades and in his spare time studied ancient texts of the church The many years of experience he had divulging the lessons of Jesus and the teachings of the wider Bible prompted him to author works both modest and lengthy in size Mullins was a great believer in the clarity of language throughout this text he seeks to express and explain topics that might otherwise be shrouded in difficult phrasing and complex concepts
