Neal Bernards

The Environmental Crisisopposing Viewpoints:

The Environmental Crisis--opposing Viewpoints Neal Bernard, 1991 Presents opposing views on questions of environmental protection and damage resulting from air and water pollution toxic wastes pesticides and the ever growing tide of refuse

The Environmental Crisis: Opposing Viewpoints David L. Bender, 1986 The Environmental Crisis--opposing Viewpoints Julie S. Bach, Lynn Hall, 1986 In terms of balance between a safe environment and immediate human needs articles by scientists business executives and environmentalists debate several crucial controversies The Environment A. E. Sadler, 1996-01-01 Provides various opinions on pollution the effects of the American way of life on the environment the economic repercussions of conservation efforts conservation methods and other environmental issues

The Environment William Dudley, 2001 This anthology traces the modern history of environmentalist thought in the United States and the rest of the world from the 19th century conservationist movement pioneers such as George Perkins Marsh and John Muir to present day debates about biodiversity and other environmental issues Water Pollution Issues and Developments Sarah V. Thomas, 2008 Pollution is undesirable state of the natural environment being contaminated with harmful substances as a consequence of human activities so that the environment becomes harmful or unfit for living things especially applicable to the contamination of soil water or the atmosphere by the discharge of harmful substances In addition to the harm to living beings both present or future and known or unknown pollution cleanup and surveillance are enormous financial drains of the economies of the world This book focuses on issues and developments critical for the field

Liberty and the Ecological Crisis Katie Kish, Christopher Orr, Bruce Jennings, 2019-11-27 This book examines the concept of liberty in relation to civilization's ability to live within ecological limits Freedom in all its renditions choice thought action has become inextricably linked to our understanding of what it means to be modern citizens And yet it is our relatively unbounded freedom that has resulted in so much ecological devastation Liberty has piggy backed on transformations in human nature relationships that characterize the Anthropocene increasing extraction of resources industrialization technological development ecological destruction and mass production linked to global consumerism This volume provides a deeply critical examination of the concept of liberty as it relates to environmental politics and ethics in the long view Contributions explore this entanglement of freedom and the ecological crisis as well as investigate alternative modernities and more ecologically benign ways of living on Earth The overarching framework for this collection is that liberty and agency need to be rethought before these strongly held ideals of our age are forced out On a finite planet our choices will become limited if we hope to survive the climatic transitions set in motion by uncontrolled consumption of resources and energy over the past 150 years This volume suggests concrete political and philosophical approaches and governance strategies for learning how to flourish in new ways within the ecological constraints of the planet Mapping out new ways forward for long term ecological well being this book is essential reading for students and scholars of ecology environmental ethics politics and sociology and for the wider audience interested in the human Earth relationship and global sustainability African Environmental Crisis Gufu Oba, 2020-03-13 This book explores how and why the idea of the African environmental crisis developed and persisted through colonial and post colonial periods and why it has been so influential in development discourse From the beginnings of imperial administration the idea of the desiccation of African environments grew in popularity but this crisis discourse was dominated by the imposition of imperial scientific knowledge neglecting indigenous knowledge and experience African Environmental Crisis provides a synthesis of more than one and a half century s research on peasant agriculture and pastoral rangeland development in terms of soil erosion control animal husbandry grazing schemes large scale agricultural schemes social and administrative science research and vector disease and pest controls Drawing on comparative socio ecological perspectives of African peoples across the East African colonies and post independent states this book refutes the hypothesis that African peoples were responsible for environmental degradation Instead Gufu Oba argues that flawed imperial assumptions and short term research projects generated an inaccurate view of the environment in Africa This book s discussion of the history of science for development provides researchers across environmental studies agronomy African history and development studies with a lens through which to understand the underlying assumptions behind development projects in Africa The Open Access version of this book available at <http://www.taylorfrancis.com> has been made available under a Creative Commons Attribution Non Commercial No Derivatives CC BY NC ND 4 0 license Managing the Environmental Crisis William Russell Mangun, Daniel H. Henning, 1999 Second edition With a new foreword by Lynton Keith Caldwell In Managing the Environmental Crisis William R Mangun and Daniel H Henning provide a balanced and comprehensive guide to the management of complex environmental and natural resource policy issues Taking into account new developments trends and issues that have arisen in recent years the authors begin with the recognition often overlooked that it is not the environment that needs to be managed but human action relating to the environment The authors review issues associated with a range of environmental policy concerns including energy considerations renewable and non renewable resource management pollution control wilderness management and urban and regional policy The history of these issues recent actions pertaining to their management difficulties associated with their continued presence and the consequences of a failure to address these concerns are explored Though focused on specific political issues Mangun and Henning direct their attention to two large scale trends globalization and the political polarization of the environmental movement At the level of the decision making process the incorporation of values specifically addressed from multicultural and cross disciplinary perspectives is also discussed International in scope the book provides descriptions of the roles of both governmental and nongovernmental organizations in the formulations and implementation of national and global environmental policy This thoroughly revised second edition discusses various successes in the arenas of environmental cooperation and management strategy while pointing to the new challenges that have emerged in the last decade Environmental Education and Advocacy Edward A. Johnson, Michael J. Mappin, 2005-03-03 Environmental education has often blurred the distinction between ecological science and environmental advocacy. Growing public awareness of environmental problems and desire for action may be contributing to this blurring. There is a need to clarify the distinction between the role of ecological science and the role of social and political values for the environment within environmental education. This book addresses this need by examining the changing perspectives of ecology in education and the changing perspectives of education in environmental education. Guidelines are provided for assessing the science and education perspectives within environmental education along with suggested frameworks for development of programs and resources that integrate current science education and action. This book will be of interest to environmental educators, ecologists interested in environmental education and curriculum and resource developers.

Religion and Ecological Crisis Md. Abu Sayem, 2022-09-02 Religion and Ecological Crisis delves into the complex relationship between religions and ecology, presenting Christian and Islamic perspectives on ecological issues through the work of John Boswell Cobb and Seyyed Hossein Nasr. It examines how faith traditions of the world see and respond to our current unprecedented climate change issues. This is the first comparative study of Cobb and Nasr's eco-religious understanding and explores how their prescriptions can contribute alternatively to techno-scientific initiatives in environmental sustainability. Taking Cobb's economism and Nasr's scientism as the key concepts for surveying the roots of the ecological crisis, the book offers interdisciplinary and interreligious insights into the debates about ecological equilibrium, motivational awareness in human mind, and about entanglements between religion and the environment. This will be an insightful resource for policy makers, faith leaders, and for academics working in Environmental Studies and Religious Studies.

The Environment Laura K. Egenorf, 2005 Few issues stir up greater controversy than the health of the environment. The contributors to this volume explore key ecological issues in these chapters: Is There an Environmental Crisis? How Can Pollution Best Be Prevented? Is the American Lifestyle Bad for the Environment? Which Policies Will Best Improve the Environment? Is There an Environmental Crisis? David L. Bender, 1986 A selection of articles discussing various aspects of the environmental problem, including its history, the causes and effects, people's reactions, and outlook for the future. Environmental Crime Yingyi Situ, David Emmons, 1999-10-11 Yingyi Situ and David Emmons in Environmental Crime address a neglected area in Criminology and Criminal Justice and do so with masterful attention to details of environmental law, law enforcement, enthralling examples, and up-to-date cases. Well-written, scholarly, and incisive in its commentary and stellar in organization, their work will be well received by both undergraduate and graduate students. Frank E. Hagan, Ph.D., Chair, Graduate Program in Administration of Justice, Professor of Sociology, Criminal Justice, Mercyhurst College, Pennsylvania. We and our environment are at risk. Air, water, and soil pollution, hazardous waste disposal, global warming, acid rain, and reduction of the ozone layer threaten the natural environment and endanger people's health. Within the last decade however environmental violations have been defined as crimes and violators viewed as criminals and criminal prosecution of the accused and criminal sanctions against the convicted have accelerated This accessibly written book examines the criminalization of environmental wrong doing Designed as a textbook for environmental crime courses at the undergraduate or beginning graduate levels it is comprehensive and logically organized The text explores the nature causes investigation prosecution and prevention of environmental crime Special emphasis is placed on the human economic social and psychological impacts of the environmental crime by corporations criminal organizations the government and individuals Although examples throughout the book reflect not only North America but the world a final chapter is devoted to global environmental law The chapter also reviews promising approaches being used by other nations in fighting environmental crime
