The Evaluation Of Social Programs:

The Evaluation of Social Programs Abt Associates, 1976 Evaluation has rapidly developed into an exciting interdisciplinary academic and applied research field. Indications are that this specialty will continue to expand and become more rigorous and demanding. Vast numbers of fields and different methodologies are using evaluation research techniques now. Yet relatively little attention has been paid to the consequences of systematic evaluation practice particularly as it affects the development and in some cases continued existence of numerous social programs. The Evaluation of Social Programs addresses these questions. It is a unique book offering up to date views of experts drawn from government universities, charitable foundations and independent research organizations who are leading practitioners or consumers of social programs research. Dust jacket Program Evaluation for Social Workers Richard M. Grinnell, Peter A. Gabor, Yvonne A. Unrau, 2018-12-27 Over the course of 20 years and eight editions the goals of the book have remained the same to prepare students to participate in evaluative activities within their organizations become beginning critical producers and consumers of the professional evaluative literature and reap the benefits of more advanced evaluation courses and texts. The authors aim to meet these objectives by presenting a unique approach that is realistic, practical, applied and user friendly. Unlike other textbooks on the market Program Evaluation for Social Workers presents both program level evaluation and case level evaluation methods assuming that neither of these two distinct approaches alone adequately reflects the realities of the field. The book demonstrates how they can instead complement each other. This integration of approaches provides an accessible, adaptable and realistic framework for students and beginning practitioners to more easily grasp and implement in the real world.

Evaluating Social Programs and Problems Stewart Ian Donaldson, Michael Scriven, 2003 Today's evaluators are being challenged to help design and evaluate social programs intended to prevent and ameliorate complex social problems in a variety of settings including schools, communities and not for profit and for profit organizations. Drawing upon the knowledge and experience of world renowned evaluators the goal of this new book is to provide the most up to date theorizing about how to practice evaluation in the new millennium. It features specific examples of evaluations of social programs and problems including the strengths and weaknesses of the most popular and promising evaluation approaches to help readers determine when particular methods are likely to be most effective. As such it is the most comprehensive volume available on modern theories of evaluation practice. Evaluating Social Programs and Problems presents diverse cutting edge perspectives articulated by prominent evaluators and evaluation theorists on topics including but not limited to Michael Scriven on evaluation as a trans discipline, Joseph S. Wholey on results oriented management, David Fetterman on empowerment evaluation, Yvonna S. Lincoln on fourth generation evaluation, Donna M. Mertens on inclusive evaluation, Stewart I. Donaldson on theory driven evaluation and Melvin M. Mark on an integrated view of diverse visions for evaluation. Evaluating Social Programs and Problems is a valuable resource and should be considered required reading for practicing

The Evaluation of Social Programs C. C. Measuring the Impact of Employment-related Social Programs Michael E. Borus, 1979 Evaluating Educational and Social Programs Blaine R. Worthen, Karl R. White, 2012-12-06

During the past two decades evaluation has come to play an increasingly important role in the operation of educational and social programs by national state and local agencies Mandates by federal funding agencies that programs they sponsored be evaluated gave impetus to use of evaluation Realization that evaluation plays a pivotal role in assuring program quality and effectiveness has maintained the use of evaluation even where mandates have been relaxed With increased use indeed institutionalization of evaluation in many community state and national agencies evaluation has matured as a profession and new evaluation approaches have been developed to aid in program planning implementation monitoring and improvement Much has been written about various philosophical and theoretical orientations to evaluation its relationship to program management appropriate roles evaluation might play new and sometimes esoteric evaluation methods and particular evaluation techniques Useful as these writings are relatively little has been written about simple but enormously important activities which comprise much of the day to day work of the program evaluator This book is focused on some of these more practical aspects that largely determine the extent to which evaluation will prove helpful

Timing and Duration of Exposure in Evaluations of Social Programs Elizabeth King, 2016

Impact evaluations aim to measure the outcomes that can be attributed to a specific policy or intervention Although there have been excellent reviews of the different methods that an evaluator can choose in order to estimate impact there has not been sufficient attention given to questions related to timing How long after a program has begun should one wait before evaluating it How long should treatment groups be exposed to a program before they can be expected to benefit from it Are there important time patterns in a program s impact Many impact evaluations assume that interventions occur at specified launch dates and produce equal and constant changes in conditions among eligible beneficiary groups but there are many reasons why this generally is not the case This paper examines the evaluation issues related to timing and discusses the sources of variation in the duration of exposure within programs and their implications for impact estimates It reviews the evidence from careful evaluations of programs with a focus on developing countries on the ways that duration affects impacts
