Violent Acts:

Violent Criminal Acts and Actors Revisited Lonnie H. Athens, 1997 Rather than finding the causes of criminal behavior in external forces or personality disorders as conventional wisdom often does the author renews his fundamental argument that a violent situation comes into being when defined by an individual as a situation that calls for violence that an actor responds to the circumstance as he or she defines it Based on the author's many firsthand interviews with offenders and on his personal experience this book augments his call to reexamine the source and locus of violent criminal behavior Crimes Against America's Homeless United States. Violence on Television Barrie Gunter, Jackie Harrison, Maggie Wykes, 2003-01-30 Concern about violence on television has been publicly debated for the past 50 years TV violence has repeatedly been identified as a significant causal agent in relation to the prevalence of crime and violence in society Critics have accused the medium of presenting excessive quantities of violence to the point where it is virtually impossible for viewers to avoid it This book presents the findings of the largest British study of violence on TV ever undertaken funded by the broadcasting industry The study was carried out at the same time as similar industry sponsored research was being conducted in the United States and one chapter compares findings from Britain and the U S A The book concludes that it is misleading to accuse all broadcasters of presenting excessive quantities of violence in their schedules This does not deny that problematic portrayals were found But the most gory horrific and graphic scenes of violence were generally contained within broadcasts available on a subscription basis or in programs shown at times when few children were expected to be watching This factual analysis proves that broadcasters were meeting their obligations under their national regulatory codes of practice Television and Behavior National Institute of Mental Health (U.S.), 1982 Abstract A comprehensive report summarizes the past 10 years of research activities and findings concerning the effects of television viewing on child behavior and development Approximately 90% of all research publications on this topic appeared during this period representing over 2500 titles The report is presented in 2 volumes a summary report and technical reviews The technical reviews comprise overall comprehensive and critical syntheses of the scientific literature on specific topic areas developed by 24 researchers in this area The topic areas address such issues as cognitive and emotional aspects of television viewing television's influences on physical and mental health television as it relates to socialization and viewer's conceptions of social reality and television as an American institution The overall orientation of the report is toward research and public health issues Broadcast Television Effects in A Remote Community Tony Charlton, Barrie Gunter, Andrew Hannan, 2002-01-12 This book reports findings from a major multidisciplinary study of the impact of broadcast television on the remote island community of St Helena in the South Atlantic Ocean Broadcast television was introduced to the island for the first time in March 1995 This introduction represented a major event on the island whose only televisual experience had been through video In the years leading up to the introduction of TV the researchers who wrote this book collected data by observing the island s young children in classroom settings and during free play In addition to these observations they asked the children s teachers to rate their students behavior and invited the children to explain to them what leisure time activities they engaged in With the data they were able to amass on these key variables they have assembled and coded the results into baseline measures central to the study Once TV had arrived they collected data annually on the key dependent measures to determine if the introduction of broadcast TV had any discernible influence on the behavior of the children

Focus on Aggression Research James P. Morgan,2004 Aggression may be defined as the act of initiating hostilities or invasion the practice or habit of launching attacks or the practice or habit of launching attacks Aggression is one of the most important and most controversial kinds of motivation Its use as a category in the psychology of motivation has often been criticised because it is clear that it encompasses a vast range of phenomena from modern war to squabbles between individuals There is an important familial component to aggression antisocial behaviour crime and violence Essentially all people are in some way affected by aggression whether they are targets of it engage in it themselves or are charged with observing and controlling it in others Thus aggression is of concern to victims perpetrators and those professionals charged with its treatment because of personal safety well being or obligation This new book examines the foundations and manifestations of aggression
