It's all in the stars: The Chinese zodiac and the effects of parental investments on offspring's cognitive and noncognitive skill development Tan, Chih Ming, Wang, Xiao, Zhang, Xiaobo, The importance of early parental investments in children's cognitive and noncognitive outcomes is a question of deep policy significance However because parental investments are arguably endogenous it is a great challenge to empirically estimate their importance This paper exploits a rich and novel dataset the China Family Panel Studies and proposes a culture specific instrumental variable based on the Chinese zodiac in order to address this empirical challenge By looking at the outcomes of children born just before and just after the cutoff for a lucky versus unlucky zodiac sign we find that parents investments have significant effects on their offspring's development of both cognitive and noncognitive skills
