

A historical painting depicting a busy harbor scene. In the foreground, a group of people in 17th-century attire are gathered. A woman in a red dress and white headscarf is looking towards a man in a dark coat and hat. Another woman in a purple dress is holding a book. In the background, numerous sailing ships are docked at a pier, and a cannon is visible on the right. The scene is set against a backdrop of a cloudy sky and distant buildings.

The Nation as a Local Metaphor Alon Confino, 2000-11-09 All nations make themselves up as they go along but not all make themselves up in the same way In this study Alon Confino explores how Germans turned national and argues that they imagined the nation as an extension of their local place In 1871 the work of political unification had been completed but Germany remained a patchwork of regions with different histories and traditions Germans had to construct a national memory to reconcile the peculiarities of the region and the totality of the nation This identity project examined by Confino as it evolved in the southwestern state of W rtemberg oscillated between failure and success The national holiday of Sedan Day failed in the 1870s and 1880s to symbolically commingle localness and nationhood Later the idea of the Heimat or homeland did prove capable of representing interchangeably the locality the region and the nation in a distinct national narrative and in visual images The German nationhood project was successful argues Confino because Germans made the nation into an everyday local experience through a variety of cultural forms including museums school textbooks popular poems travel guides posters and postcards But it was not unique Confino situates German nationhood within the larger context of modernity and in doing so he raises broader questions about how people in the modern world use the past in the construction of identity

Within and Without the Nation Karen Dubinsky, Adele Perry, Henry Yu, 2016-01-28 In some ways Canadian history has always been international comparative and wide ranging However in recent years the importance of the ties between Canadian and transnational history have become increasingly clear Within and Without the Nation brings scholars from a range of disciplines together to examine Canada s past in new ways through the lens of transnational scholarship Moving beyond well known comparisons with Britain and the United States the fifteen essays in this collection connect Canada with Latin America the Caribbean and the wider Pacific world as well as with other parts of the British Empire Examining themes such as the dispossession of indigenous peoples the influence of nationalism and national identity and the impact of global migration Within and Without the Nation is a text which will help readers rethink what constitutes Canadian history

A History of the Iziko South African National Gallery Anna Tietze, 2017-06-14 In South Africa with its highly contested and changing understandings of national identity its National Gallery is no less a contested space A History of the Iziko South African National Gallery considers questions of artistic and cultural identity from the late 19th century to the present day It explores how the gallery has understood its function and its public as a national gallery from 1930 and before that the chief gallery of the Cape Colony This question is investigated through a study of the gallery s administration collection and exhibition practices over the last 150 years What is understood by and expected of a national gallery varies considerably worldwide Should it regard itself as part of a broad international cultural discourse or should it be representative of a specifically national or even regional identity The gallery is a microcosm of the greater debate how the South African nation relates to the larger world and how if at all it understands the concept of a shared culture In the last 20 years Museum Studies have become a major part of the field of Cultural Studies There is a vast literature on what might be called the history museum but far less on the art museum or gallery To date there has been no large scale historical inquiry into the Iziko SANG the country s national gallery The absence of such a history marks a serious gap in the literature which this study aims to fill

The Constitutional Review, 1928 The Sage Handbook of Interpreting Chinese History Kristin Stapleton, Xin Fan, Els van Dongen, 2026-01-10 The Sage Handbook of Interpreting Chinese History offers an in depth exploration of the evolution of historical narratives in China over the past century Bringing together some of the world s leading scholars this handbook provides both depth and breadth to our understanding of how Chinese leaders intellectuals and the public conceive of their place in the world It examines the dramatic shifts in historical interpretation documenting both the creative use and disastrous abuse of the Chinese past China s growing global influence has led to increased interest in its historical perspectives Understanding contemporary Chinese conceptions of international politics and intercultural relations requires a deep dive into how history is interpreted and taught in China This handbook aims to look under the hood at the motivations and methods behind historical storytelling the role of historical knowledge in social and political stability and the deployment of key terms and images in politics and social life The handbook is organized into several key sections The first section provides an overview of key ideas such as the tributary system and constitutionalism alongside critical analyses of intellectual history and Sino foreign relations The subsequent sections delve into how history was written and historical narratives disseminated and deployed in four different eras of modern Chinese history the late Qing period the Republican era the Maoist era and the Reform era Each era is examined through the lens of official and popular history exploring the relationship between history and memory The final section introduces perspectives on historical narratives from Chinese border regions as well as Sinophone narratives produced outside the PRC state system highlighting the diversity of views on Chinese history The Sage Handbook of Interpreting Chinese History is an essential resource for scholars practitioners and students seeking to understand the complexities of historical interpretation in modern China It provides a comprehensive and nuanced exploration of the field equipping readers to engage with the theoretical and practical aspects of Chinese historical narratives Part I Overviews and Framing Chapters Part II History in the Late Qing Era Part III History in the Republican Era Part IV History in the Maoist Era Part V History in the Reform Era Part VI Border Histories Australia: the Making of a Nation John Foster Fraser, 1910
