rapidly and concerns about food security increase interest in urban agriculture has been renewed in both developed and developing countries This book focuses on the sustainable development of urban agriculture and its relationship to food planning in cities It brings together the best revised and updated papers from the Sixth Association of European Schools of Planning AESOP conference on Sustainable Food Planning The main emphasis is on the latest research and thinking on spatial planning and design showing how urban agriculture provides opportunities to develop and enhance the spatial quality of urban environments Chapters address various topics such as a new theoretical model for understanding urban agriculture how urban agriculture contributes to restoring our connections to nature and the limitations of the garden city concept to food security Case studies are included from several European countries including Bulgaria France Germany Italy Netherlands Romania Spain Turkey and the UK as well as Australia Canada Cameroon Ethiopia and the United States New York and Los Angeles

Demands of Expanding Populations and Development Planning Frederic R. Siegel, 2008-08-03

Population Answering the Needs and Demands The world's human population is 6.6 billion people and growing by 80 million in 2005 Most of the growth is in less developed nations The Population Reference Bureau 2006 estimates that the global population will reach 7.9 billion people by 2025 It is projected to stabilize at 9.2 billion people by 2050 Governments strive to attract industrial manufacturing services and other projects to advance their economies and thus cope with existing social and political problems and future challenges heightened by expanding populations They are encouraged in these efforts by international lending and development organizations such as the World Bank and the International Finance Corporation These and other multilateral regional and sub regional development banks make funds available for economic and social improvement programs in developing countries

Table p 1 Well planned projects can stimulate economic growth and create wealth in a society This wealth can be used to promote the health education and general welfare status of its members and their employment opportunities even as populations expand There are many theories that define and expound on economic development Malizia and Feser 1999 summarize the theories in terms of their essential dynamics strengths and weaknesses and how they are applied to achieve growth All theories agree that economic advancement is based on investing capital in projects that can flourish and yield financial gain over extended periods of time

Local government planning for community food systems Raja, S.; Sweeney, E.; Mui, Y.; Frimpong Boamah, E., Over the last couple of decades local governments have started taking action to address food system challenges Many innovative food policies have taken place in cities in particular However despite major developments spearheaded by visionary local leaders and communities in recent years local governments in low and middle income countries LMICs continue to face major challenges in integrating food security nutrition and sustainable food systems in their agenda This publication introduces a new knowledge base for understanding food planning and governance processes and models in local governments of low and middle income countries a valuable counterbalance to the prevailing literature and experience from high income countries It provides practical insights on the needs challenges and opportunities in local food planning practice in three countries in Asia Africa and Latin America and the Caribbean Based on reported cases this publication offers a broad guiding framework and a methodology for subnational government bodies including city metropolitan regional distinct and parish governments that takes into consideration the uniqueness of each local context
