Tibetan Terror:

Tibetan Terror Peter Sherwood, 1979 Tibetan Buddhism in Diaspora Ana Lopes, 2014-12-17 The imperialist ambitions of China which invaded Tibet in the late 1940s have sparked the spectacular spread of Tibetan Buddhism worldwide and especially in western countries This work is a study on the malleability of a particular Buddhist tradition on its adaptability in new contexts The book analyses the nature of the Tibetan Buddhism in the Diaspora It examines how the re-signification of Tibetan Buddhist practices and organizational structures in the present refers back to the dismantlement of the Tibetan state headed by the Dalai Lama and the fragmentation of Tibetan Buddhist religious organizations in general It includes extensive multi-sited fieldwork conducted in the United States Brazil Europe and Asia and a detailed analysis of contemporary documents relating to the global spread of Tibetan Buddhism The author demonstrates that there is a de-institutionalized and de-territorialized project of political power and religious organization which among several other consequences engenders the gradual autonomization of lamas and lineages inside the religious field of Tibetan Buddhism Thus a spectre of these previous institutions continues to exist outside their original contexts and they are continually activated in ever new settings Using a combination of two different academic traditions namely the Brazilian anthropological tradition and the American Buddhist studies tradition it investigates the process of cultural re-signification of Tibetan Buddhism in the context of its Diaspora Thus it will be a valuable resource to students and scholars of Asian Religion Asian Studies and Buddhism

Tibet on Fire John Whalen-Bridge, 2015-10-07 Using Kenneth Burke's concept of dramatism as a way of exploring multiple motivations in symbolic expression Tibet on Fire examines the Tibetan self-immolation movement of 2011-2015 The volume asserts that the self-immolation act is an affirmation of Tibetan identity in the face of cultural genocide

Aflame for Freedom in Tibet Namloyak Dhungser, 2024-06-25 Since 2009 images of Tibetans setting themselves on fire in protest of the repressive policies of the Chinese government have drawn attention from around the world In Aflame for Freedom in Tibet: The Origin and Development of the Self-Immolation Movement Namloyak Dhungser examines the protest movement and its motivations through interviews with Tibetans both inside Tibet and abroad and in the context of developments in Tibetan history providing unique insight into the multifaceted origins of this movement in both contemporary and historic Tibetan perspectives The number of self-immolating protestors continues to climb a final plea from Tibetans to the world to secure their freedom This book is not only a path to a deeper understanding of the Tibetan situation past and future but a call to action to recognize basic Tibetan human rights

The Moral Psychology of Terrorism Nathan Lean, Jalil Roshandel, 2013-07-29 Terrorism of the past ten years has been driven by the interface of psychology morality faith religion and politics This modern terrorism reflects terrorists' pursuit of their beliefs and the aggressive promotion of the exclusivity of their world views at the expense of the lives of those who do not share them In this sense acts of terrorism are fueled by arguments of morality and views that are rooted in the psyches and beliefs of terrorists Thus it is critically important to examine the growing phenomenon of terrorism through not only a political lens but a psychological one as well where questions about the cognitive mappings of those who are considered terrorists are probed The examination of the moral psychology of terrorism opens up new insights into the real threats that face the global community This important volume brings out that discussion and seeks to understand what motivates people to kill both themselves and innocent bystanders How can we better understand this tragic human path towards violence Providing perspectives from several continents and academic disciplines the editors and contributors of this work move the study of terrorism away from its traditional center in the academic worlds of political science and security studies and present a wide range of perspectives that focus on psychology philosophy and questions of morality linguistics history religious studies and ethics Intended for the academic community and the general public alike these rich presentations and analyses are sure to foster a healthier more productive and more effective conversation about terrorism the minds of terrorists and how to reach a place where this violent phenomenon is less prevalent

Striking Terror Philip C. Wilcox,2002 Immediately following the terrorist attacks of September 11 2001 the New York Review of Books began publishing articles by some of America most distinguished writers on how America should respond to terrorism as well as reports from correspondents inside Afghanistan and Pakistan This is a collection of those articles

Contemporary Tibet Barry Sautman,June Teufel Dreyer,2017-03-02 The subject of Tibet is highly controversial and Tibet as a political entity is defined differently from source to source and audience to audience The editors of this path breaking multidisciplinary study have gathered some of the leading scholars in Tibetan and ethnic studies to provide a comprehensive analysis of the Tibet question Contemporary Tibet explores essential themes and issues concerning modern Tibet It presents fresh material from various political viewpoints and data from original surveys and field research The contributors consider such topics as representations and sovereignty economic development and political conditions the exile movement and human rights historical legacies and international politics identity issues and the local society The individual chapters provide historical background as well as a general framework to examine Tibet s present situation in world politics the relationship with China and the West and prospects for the future

The Root of All Evil? Lori J. Underwood,2013 There is a great deal of popular belief in the connection between religious extremism and terrorism There are also numerous statistical analyses that reject that connection Upon a deeper analysis however both of these approaches are oversimplifications To adequately answer the question of whether there is a significant causal relationship between organizational religions and terrorism it is necessary to take a closer and more critical look at the ideologies and practices of both religious practitioners and terrorists It is important to focus on the causality of the relationship because if there is no causal relationship between religion and terrorism then removing adherence to religion will do nothing to ameliorate the problem of terrorism The Root of All Evil Religious Perspectives on Terrorism conducts this kind of analysis
