

HOW TO BE HAPPY

Spend time with loved ones

While it may sound like a Hallmark card, research confirms that spending time with the people you love will make you happier.

Exercise

Energy, endorphins, and a sense of accomplishment all increase happiness.

Have a long-term relationship

Married people are happier and more resilient under stress than those who are single.

Commit to goals

Goals and happiness are mutually reinforcing. Happy people have lots of energy, and that energy can be put toward pursuing their latest quest.

Find meaningful work

There's a difference between a job, a career, and a calling. People who are fulfilled by their work are happiest.

Eat fresh food

A 2013 study titled "Many apples a day keep the blues away" found that eating lots of fresh fruits and vegetables had a positive correlation with happiness.

Buy experiences

According to Harvard psychologist Daniel Gilbert, "If money doesn't make you happy, then you probably aren't spending it right." We derive more long-term happiness from experiences than from material things.
