Teacher Burnout

Anthony Gary Dworkin

Teacher Burnout:

Teacher Burnout in the Public Schools Anthony Gary Dworkin, 1987-01-01 This unique study is the first large scale sociological analysis of teacher burnout linking it with alienation commitment and turnover in the educational profession In the process of doing so Anthony Gary Dworkin uncovers some startling trends that challenge previous assumptions held by public school administrators Urban public school districts spend up to several million dollars annually on programs intended to rekindle enthusiasm among their teachers hoping thereby to reduce the turnover rates They also assume that enthusiastic teachers will heighten student achievement Yet data presented in Teacher Burnout in the Public Schools challenge these suppositions Dworkin s research shows teacher entrapment rather than teacher turnover as the greater problem in education today Teachers are now more likely to spend their entire working lifetime disliking their careers and sometimes their students rather than quitting their jobs and Dworkin proposes that principals more than any other school personnel can do much to break the functional linkage between school related stress and teacher burnout The author s findings also indicate that burned out teachers pose a minimal threat to the achievement of most children but that they do have an adverse impact on brighter students Teacher Burnout in the Public Schools includes an inventory of supported propositions and three levels of policy recommendations These important policy recommendations suggest substantial organizational changes in the nature of the training of public school teachers in the college educational curriculum in the teacher employment and deployment practices of school districts as well as in the administrative style of school principals
