The Wilson Line:

The Wilson Line Arthur G. Credland, 2000 Founded in the early years of the 19th century the Wilson Line became the largest privately owned steamship fleet in the world Based in Hull its main trade was to and from Scandinavia and the Baltic States although the Wilson Line also carried cargoes to the USA the Mediterranean and India Emigrants were an important part of the company's business Large numbers of Norwegians Swedes and Jewish refugees of the Tsarist pogroms were brought into Hull transported overland to Liverpool and shipped to America In the 1890s Wilson Line ships carried more cargo to the USA than the ships of any other line By 1919 losses from the fleet were such that the line was put up for sale Bought by Ellerman the name changed slightly but the old ways continued Ellerman's Wilson Line remained independent of the rest of the Ellerman empire Rebuilding the fleet was a priority but trading conditions were difficult with too many ships chasing the available cargo The Second World War saw a reduction in fleet size from 35 to just 9 and another rebuilding programme got under way in 1945 The once lucrative American trade ceased in 1961 and the Wilson Line began to use the roll on roll off ferries for its Gothenburg service in 1966 In 1983 the entire Ellerman Group was put up for sale By 1987 the company was in the hands of Trafalgar House and called Cunard Ellerman In 1991 P O purchased the Ellerman Group container business and sold the remaining four ships Every trace of Wilson's once the largest independent steamship company in the world had now vanished
