The Young Child And The Educative Process:

The Young Child and the Educative Process Joe L. Frost, Joan B. Kissinger, 1976 The Young Child and the Educative Process Joe L. Frost, 1974 Early Childhood Education Petr G. Grotewell, Yanus R. Burton, 2008 This book focuses on early childhood education which spans the human life from birth to age 8 Infants and toddlers experience life more holistically than any other age group Social emotional cognitive language and physical lessons are not learned separately by very young children Adults who are most helpful to young children interact in ways that understand that the child is learning from the whole experience not just that part of the experience to which the adult gives attention Although early childhood education does not have to occur in the absence of the parent or primary caregiver this term is sometimes used to denote education by someone other than these the parent or primary caregiver Both research in the field and early childhood educators view the parents as an integral part of the early childhood education process Early childhood education takes many forms depending on the theoretical and educational beliefs of the educator or parent Other terms that is often used interchangeably with early childhood education are early childhood learning early care and early education Much of the first two years of life are spent in the creation of a child s first sense of self or the building of a first identity Because this is a crucial part of children s makeup how they first see themselves how they think they should function how they expect others to function in relation to them early care must ensure that in addition to carefully selected and trained caregivers links with family home culture and home language are a central part of program policy If care becomes a substitute for rather than a support of family children may develop a less than positive sense of who they are and where they come from because of their child care experience

Learning Together with Young Children Deb Curtis, Margie Carter, 2007-11-01 Many curriculum books treat teaching as something teachers do to or for children Deb Curtis and Margie Carter best selling authors in the early learning field believe teaching is a collaborative process in which teachers reexamine their own philosophies and practices while facilitating children s learning Each chapter in this curriculum framework includes a conceptual overview followed by classroom stories and photographs to illustrate the concepts The book helps teachers create materials and a classroom culture reflective of their values Teach through observation reflection inquiry and action and encourage children to represent their learning in multiple ways including songs stories and drama Engaging Young Children Noirin Hayes, Margaret Kernan, 2008-04-22 This book is about the theory and processes that inform daily practice with young children in early childhood education and care settings It offers a clear overview of the historical developments of early childhood education policy and theoretical thinking in Ireland within an international context It reflects on the rapid worldwide changes in the lives of parents and young children and takes on the question of how to provide quality childcare and education for your children It emphasises the concepts of the child as an active agent in his or her own development it introduces the concept of a nurturing pedagogy and highlights the fact that bringing up children is a social endeavour This book analyses and critiques early childhood policy development and implementation in Ireland while complimenting developments such as Siolta The National Quality Framework and the National Framework for Early Learning It contextualises international research findings on young children s development and learning and the role of practitioners and the critical importance of the learning environment as applied to children s everyday experiences and setting practice in Ireland In summary this book focuses on the centrality of the child in the learning process as well as on the critical role of the adult in early childhood pedagogy

Young Children's Play and Environmental Education in Early Childhood Education Amy Cutter-Mackenzie, Susan Edwards, Deborah Moore, Wendy Boyd, 2014-01-18 In an era in which environmental education has been described as one of the most pressing educational concerns of our time further insights are needed to understand how best to approach the learning and teaching of environmental education in early childhood education In this book we address this concern by identifying two principles for using play based learning early childhood environmental education The principles we identify are the result of research conducted with teachers and children using different types of play based learning whilst engaged in environmental education Such play types connect with the historical use of play based learning in early childhood education as a basis for pedagogy In the book Beyond Quality in ECE and Care authors Dahlberg Moss and Pence implore readers to ask critical questions about commonly held images of how young children come to construct themselves within social institutions In similar fashion this little book problematizes the taken for grantedness of the childhood development project in service to the certain cultural narratives Cutter Mackenzie Edwards Moore and Boyd challenge traditional conceptions of play based learning through the medium of environmental education This book signals a turning point in social thought grounded in a relational view of environmental education as experiential intergenerational interspecies embodied learning in the third space As Barad says such work is based in inter actions that can account for the tangled spaces of agencies Through the deceptive simplicity of children s play the book stimulates deliberation of the real purposes of pedagogy and of schooling Paul Hart University of Regina Canada
