C Pezzullo, 2013-10-31 The environment is perhaps most misunderstood as a static place somewhere out there separated from the practices of our everyday lives Given this assumption environmental movements and concerns have remained mostly marginalized or denigrated in cultural studies publications conferences and presentations Recent global developments have made changing this oversight and at times direct resistance to engaging environmental concerns a new priority This edited collection illustrates an appreciation of the dynamic palpable and significant ways the environment permeates culture and vice versa as well as a collective commitment to the ways that cultural studies has more to offer and to learn from taking environmental matters to heart Like foundational categories of identity economics and historical context this collection reminds us why the environment is and should be considered relevant to any work done in the name of cultural studies Including research from four continents and across media the authors offer insights on timely topics such as food tourism human animal relations forests queer theory indigenous rights and water This book was published as a special issue of Cultural Studies Passionate Communities Marilyn R. Harrison is a collection of sketches likely written during the late 19th century The work seeks to capture various aspects and phases of colonial life particularly from a Canadian perspective blending both truth and imagination to explore unique individual characteristics in society The opening of this collection sets the tone with a poignant and introspective piece about an unnamed protagonist who finds himself in a state of desperation and ambition while living in London He reflects on his artistic aspirations grappling with the reality of being an unknown toiling within the boundaries of a vast city that seems indifferent to his existence As he seeks recognition for his creations including an opera dear to him he is haunted by memories of a love Hortense who remains a distant dream The narrative paints a vivid picture of the protagonist s feelings of loneliness longing and passion for both his art and the city itself establishing a foundation for the sketches that follow in the anthology This is an automatically generated summary Harper's New Monthly Magazine ,1887 A Bed of Roses W.
