Evaluation Sandra Mathison, 2004-10-21 The Encyclopedia of Evaluation is an authoritative first of its kind who what where why and how of the field of evaluation Covering professional practice as well as academia this volume chronicles the development of the field its history key figures theories approaches and goals From the leading publisher in the field of evaluation this work is a must have for all social science libraries departments that offer courses in evaluation and students and professional evaluators around the world The entries in this Encyclopedia capture the essence of evaluation as a practice methods techniques roles people as a profession professional obligations shared knowledge ethical imperatives events places and as a discipline theories and models of evaluation ontological and epistemological issues Social Psychology and Evaluation Melvin M. Mark, Stewart Ian Donaldson, Bernadette Campbell, 2011-05-11 This compelling work brings together leading social psychologists and evaluators to explore the intersection of these two fields and how their theory practices and research findings can enhance each other An ideal professional reference or student text the book examines how social psychological knowledge can serve as the basis for theory driven evaluation facilitate more effective partnerships with stakeholders and policymakers and help evaluators ask more effective questions about behavior Also identified are ways in which real world evaluation findings can identify gaps in social psychological theory and test and improve the validity of social psychological findings for example in the areas of cooperation competition and intergroup relations The volume includes a useful glossary of both fields terms and offers practical suggestions for fostering cross fertilization in research graduate training and employment opportunities Each chapter features introductory and concluding comments from the editors Using Theory to Improve Program and Policy Evaluations Huey-tysh Chen, Peter H. Rossi, 1992-05-20 This collection of essays edited by Huey tsyh Chen and Peter H Rossi underscores the importance of theory in program evaluation and analyzes the nature and implications of theory driven evaluations Scholars from different disciplines cover a wide range of issues such as functions of program theory the interface between theory and methods strategies for formulating theory cost and resource constraints different types of theory driven evaluations and the future implications of such evaluations This broad based analysis is designed for interdisciplinary audiences in all the social sciences including political scientists sociologists and public administrators This policy study analysis points to four types of theory that guide evaluations and describe theory driven metaevaluation Five approaches are used to analyze research strategies and methods Three applications offer insights into programs and policies and their implementation multigoal theory driven approaches programs for the homeless and children s mental health services Five chapters examine applications in impact assessment and cost benefit analysis the importance of theory in selection modeling the impact of plant closings research based theory for educational planning and evaluation using meta analysis in evaluation and theory driven approaches to cost benefit analysis Substance Abuse Prevention Programs for Children June Pressly Mead, 1995 Theorists' Models in Action Marvin Alkin, 2005-08-11 This volume analyzes how evaluation theorists apply their approach in practice A scenario of a situation at an elementary school is presented to four prominent theorists who describe how they would design and conduct an evaluation of the school's program. The editors consider the theorists' proposed evaluations as well as their subsequent comments to develop themes related to the influence of theory and context on practice. They also provide a comparative analysis of the theorists' evaluation approaches in relation to the context of evaluation case presented. Evaluation theorists seem to be quite good at propounding on how they think the evaluation world ought to work. Yet do we really know that what theorists say they would do in practice is indeed what they would actually do? Evaluation after all is situational. Each context offers its own constituency set of values, programmatic elements, bureaucratic hurdles, and other variables. This volume demonstrates why evaluators need to adapt their point of view to a particular situation and provides much needed study and analysis on the way in which they make those adaptations. Postlethwaite, 1994 International Perspectives on Evaluation Standards Craig Russon, Gabrielle Russon, 2005-02-11 Prior to 1995 there were fewer than half a dozen regional and national evaluation organizations around the world. Today there are more than fifty attesting to a growing interest in the practice of program evaluation internationally. Many of these new organizations have undertaken efforts to develop their own standards or to modify existing sets, most typically the Program Evaluation Standards of the Joint Committee on Standards for Educational Evaluation for use in their own cultural context. Following two introductory chapters, one a conceptual overview and the second a history of the development and revisions of the Program Evaluation Standards, this issue documents standards development efforts in three different settings: Western Europe, Africa, and Australasia. In addition, because nongovernmental organizations and governments have entered the standard setting business, other chapters describe standards development activities by the European Commission and CARE International. The content points to the challenge of formalizing standards for program evaluation given cross-cultural differences in values and to the continuing challenges related to implementing voluntary standards.
