Sea of Cortez and Other Plays John Steppling, 1996 Writing on the play Sea of Cortez in Elephant Sun no escape from the forces that be natural or man made Guilt is inexpiable In each scene the characters must begin all over again the effect of which is to point up Steppling's underlying Romantic sensibility For even while the figures of his plays have no actual hope of communication they forever remain on the verge of possibility Face to face the figures almost scream out not only for communication but for a simple caress even a touch but the dark surrounding silence serves as a kind of coitus interruptus and the character are forced to sink back into their determined alienation Desire is all they are left After Douglas Messerli, 1998 Beginning in the late 1970s poet dramatist and fiction writer Douglas Messerli began casually translating poems that he had difficulty comprehending in other translations Describing these sometimes loosely translated works as poems after the originals he began experimenting in his own poetry with some of the poetic techniques and themes he had worked with in the poems of other languages In 1993 he began pairing the poems he had written with the poems after other writers American Book Publishing Record, 1995 History of the Ancient Peoples of the Classic East Gaston Maspero, 1896 Barnesbook Jackson Mac Low, 1996 Long an admirer of the work of Djuna Barnes noted poet Jackson Mac Low used five of her works as the source material to which he applied the method of involving irregularly biased random digit triplets to lead to a chance determined number of sentences in these works and to mix them He then entered each group of mixed sentences into the DIASTEXT program and edited the output The result is a wonderful nonintentional work that whispers Barnes's incredible words something quick into the ear In this work the distinguished American poet winner of the 1994 America Award for Poetry continues to explore the dynamics and excitement of the American language and its meaning I Novissimi Alfredo Giuliani, 1995 Bedouin Hornbook Nathaniel Mackey, 1997 Nod Fanny Howe, 1998 The central figures of this fiction Irene and Cloda interact with one another and the man who has encamped in their ghost now guest room as if playing out the lives of the Brontes to a packed theater audience Kogoshui Hironari Inbe, 1926
