The narrative turn in the humanities which expanded the study of narrative to various disciplines has found a correlate in the medial turn in narratology. Long restricted to language based literary fiction, narratology has found new life in the recognition that storytelling can take place in a variety of media and often combines signs belonging to different semiotic categories: visual, auditory, linguistic and perhaps even tactile. The essays gathered in this volume apply the newly gained awareness of the expressive power of media to particular texts, demonstrating the productivity of a medium aware analysis. Through the examination of a wide variety of different media ranging from widely studied such as literature and film to new neglected or non standard ones such as graphic novels, photography, television, musicals, computer games and advertising, they address some of the most fundamental questions raised by the medial turn in narratology: how can narrative meaning be created in media other than language? how do different types of signs collaborate with each other in so called multi modal works and what new forms of narrativity are made possible by the emergence of digital media?
