Warpaths The Policy Of Partition:

Warpaths Robert Schaeffer, 1991-05-01      Warpaths Robert K. Schaeffer, 1990-01-01 Argues that partition is a mistaken policy which only deepens enmity looks at how the superpowers have acted together to create a series of divided states and suggests a more constructive approach      Partitioning Palestine Penny Sinanoglou, 2019-11-22 Partitioning Palestine is the first history of the ideological and political forces that led to the idea of partition that is a division of territory and sovereignty in British mandate Palestine in the first half of the twentieth century Inverting the spate of narratives that focus on how the idea contributed to or hindered the development of future Israeli and Palestinian states Penny Sinanoglou asks instead what drove and constrained British policymaking around partition and why partition was simultaneously so appealing to British policymakers yet ultimately proved so difficult for them to enact Taking a broad view not only of local and regional factors but also of Palestine's place in the British empire and its status as a League of Nations mandate Sinanoglou deftly recasts the story of partition in Palestine as a struggle to maintain imperial control After all British partition plans imagined space both for a Zionist state indebted to Britain and for continued British control over key geostrategic assets depending in large part on the forced movement of Arab populations With her detailed look at the development of the idea of partition from its origins in the 1920s Sinanoglou makes a bold contribution to our understanding of the complex interplay between internationalism and imperialism at the end of the British empire and reveals the legacies of British partitionist thinking in the broader history of decolonization in the modern Middle East      Balancing in the Balkans R. Tanter, J. Psarouthakis, 1999-08-20 Balancing in the Balkans explores the region for ideas concerning globalism the creation of transnational economic communities from capital flows across political boundaries tribalism and the disintegration of nations into ethnic factions based upon ancient hatreds In this book Tanter and Psarouthakis debate the best way to achieve balance how parties in conflict can learn moderation and peaceful coexistence      Animosity at Bay Pallavi Raghavan, 2020 A fresh unconventional look at the early post partition years suggesting that cooperation rather than conflict was the order of the day between India and Pakistan      Partition and Peace in Civil Wars Carter R. Johnson, 2021-08-09 This book examines whether partition is an effective means to resolve ethnic and sectarian civil wars It argues that partition is unlikely to end ongoing ethnosectarian civil wars but it can increase the likelihood of preventing civil war recurrence as long as the partition separates civilians and militaries The book presents in depth case studies of Georgia Abkhazia and Moldova Transnistria in addition to cross national comparisons of all ethnosectarian civil wars between 1945 and 2004 This analysis demonstrates when partitioning a country can help transform an identity based civil war into a lasting peace Highlighting practical and moral challenges of separating ethnosectarian groups the book contends that complete partitions cannot be easily implemented by the international community and this limits their applicability It also demonstrates that ethnosectarian civil wars are driven less by inter group antagonisms and more by state breakdown meaning displaced minorities can reintegrate peacefully after partition as long as a minimal level of state building has been completed The book ends by examining whether partition would be useful for five contemporary conflicts Iraq Ukraine Donbass Afghanistan Sudan South Sudan and Serbia Kosovo This book will be of much interest to students of civil wars ethnic conflict peace and conflict studies and international relations

Homelands Nadav G. Shelef, 2020-07-15 Why are some territorial partitions accepted as the appropriate borders of a nation's homeland whereas in other places conflict continues despite or even because of division of territory In Homelands Nadav G Shelef develops a theory of what homelands are that acknowledges both their importance in domestic and international politics and their change over time These changes he argues driven by domestic political competition and help explain the variation in whether partitions resolve conflict Homelands also provides systematic comparable data about the homeland status of lost territory over time that allow it to bridge the persistent gap between constructivist theories of nationalism and positivist empirical analyses of international relations

Compromising Palestine Aharon Klieman, 2000-02-05 Choice

Ethnic Bargaining Erin K. Jenne, 2014-05-30 Ethnic Bargaining introduces a theory of minority politics that blends comparative analysis and field research in the postcommunist countries of East Central Europe with insights from rational choice Erin K Jenne finds that claims by ethnic minorities have become more frequent since 1945 even though nation states have been on the whole more responsive to groups than in earlier periods Minorities that perceive an increase in their bargaining power will tend to radicalize their demands she argues from affirmative action to regional autonomy to secession in an effort to attract ever greater concessions from the central government The language of self-determination and minority rights originally adopted by the Great Powers to redraw boundaries after World War I was later used to facilitate the process of decolonization Jenne believes that in the 1960s various ethnic minorities began to use the same discourse to pressure national governments into transfer payments and power sharing arrangements Violence against minorities was actually in some cases fueled by this politicization of ethnic difference Jenne uses a rationalist theory of bargaining to examine the dynamics of ethnic cleavage in the cases of the Sudeten Germans in interwar Czechoslovakia Slovaks and Moravians in postcommunist Czechoslovakia the Hungarians in Romania Slovakia and Vojvodina and the Albanians in Kosovo Throughout she challenges the conventional wisdom that partisan intervention is an effective mechanism for protecting minorities and preventing or resolving internal conflict

Ethnic Partition as a Solution to Ethnic War Nicholas Sambanis, 1999 Partition theorists argue that when violent ethnic conflict is intense civil politics cannot be restored unless ethnic groups are demographically separated into defensible enclaves The empirical evidence suggests otherwise

Power To The People Robert K Schaeffer, 1997-07-31 Power to the People after documenting the emergence of a new interstate system and the Cold War that divided it in the postwar period examines the factors that led to the process of democratization in countries around the world Ethnic Conflict: Settlement of ethnic conflict Rajat Ganguly,2009 Ethnic conflicts in various scales and forms are a feature of the post Cold War international landscape from which no region of the world is completely free In terms of impact it has been equally devastating for both developed and developing states Therefore there has never been a more appropriate time to study ethnic conflict in all its dimensions This four volume collection examines the many facets of ethnic conflict including their causes consequences and resolution Volume I Ethnic Identity includes articles dealing with the various interpretations and meanings of ethnicity and the debate surrounding the formation persistence and salience of ethnic identity Volume II Causes of Ethnic Conflict focuses on causal explanations of ethnic conflict Volume III The Consequences of Ethnic Conflict then focuses on the consequences or impacts of ethnic conflict Finally Volume IV The Settlement of Ethnic Conflict discusses articles that cover the settlement of ethnic conflict Kargil and After Kanti P.
