We Women Worked So Hard:

"We Women Worked So Hard" Terri Barnes, 1999 African ideas of gender in colonial Zimbabwe centrally shaped oppositional responses well before the advent of nationalism Citing a wide collection of vibrant oral histories the author argues that urban African men and women in colonial Harare constructed complex yet coherent identities and durable hopes for themselves in broad moments of gendered conflict and consensus "We Women Worked So Hard" Terri Barnes, 1993

African nurses and everyday work in twentieth-century Zimbabwe Clement Masakure, 2020-12-15 Informed by the memories of African nurses this book highlights the experiences of men and women who provided nursing services in Zimbabwe's hospitals in the twentieth century It argues that in their subordinate positions and within their various capacities nursing assistants nursing orderlies medics and qualified nurses African women and men played a pivotal role in the provision of healthcare services to their fellow Africans They transformed hospital spaces into their own reshaped and reformulated indigenous as well as western nursing and biomedical practices Through their work African nurses contributed to the development of the nation by being at the bedside healing the sick and nursing the infirm Melanesian Odysseys Lisette Josephides, 2008-07-01 In a series of epic self narratives ranging from traditional cultural embodiments to picaresque adventures Christian epiphanies and a host of interactive strategies and techniques for living Kewa Highlanders PNG attempt to shape and control their selves and their relentlessly changing world This lively account transcends ethnographic particularity and offers a wide reaching perspective on the nature of being human Inverting the analytic logic of her previous work which sought to uncover what social structures concealed Josephides focuses instead on the cultural understandings that people make explicit in their actions and speech Using approaches from philosophy and anthropology she examines elicitation how people create their selves and their worlds in the act of making explicit and mimesis how anthropologists produce ethnographies to arrive at an unexpected conclusion that knowledge of self and other alike derives from self externalization rather than self introspection Black Peril, White Virtue Jock McCulloch, 2000 Over the next decades more than twenty men were executed though many were innocent of any serious crime As Jock McCulloch shows the panics were complex events which encompassed such issues as miscegenation prostitution the management of venereal disease the politics of concubinage and the construction of whiteness BOOK JACKET Pan-Africanism in Dialogue Mary Nyangweso, Mutombo Nkulu-N'Sengha, 2026-04-30 This book considers how people of African descent can generate policies and ideas for the twenty first century that are embedded in the ideals of Pan Africanism For decades Pan Africanism has championed an intellectual ideal that recognizes the unity of people of African descent in their efforts to resist imperialism racism slavery inequality and neo colonialism while advancing the decolonization of Africa Yet despite the Pan African commitment to self determination and transformation based on common interests and identities in many areas of Africa there has been a resurgence in the discrimination and suppression of people of African descent marked by fraudulent elections the suppression of opposition parties and the media and the exile of key intellectual figures This book argues that Pan African ideas can help to provide practical solutions that address both persisting and emerging challenges such as the scramble for material wealth by Europeans and now the Chinese Interdisciplinary and collaborative by design this book brings together a range of themes from women s contributions to the movement to Ubuntu to the role of religion politics and the environment with the intention of mobilising a new generation to reclaim their African culture knowledge dignity and equality This important new book will be of interest to Pan African researchers and students across the social sciences as well as to activists and civil society actors
