Tatars Of The Crimea:

Crimea Is Ours: The Crimean Tatars' Never Ending Struggle - A Short History Melek Maksudoğlu, 2023 The Crimean Tatars have often been ignored in the Crimean studies Whereas the Crimean Tatars are the indigenous people the owners of the land faced deportations multiple times and managed to arise each time They have returned to homeland after 50 years of struggle to build their own civilisation once they had it before the horrific deportation of 1944 Every Crimean Tatar elderly men women children they all had bright lights in their eyes The light of hope The hope to build their home in the land of their ancestors They had nothing in their possessions to start with They did not have a roof over their heads living in tents But they had the light of hope Soon it will be ten years of living under the Russian control and the light in the people s eyes are disappearing Once Crimea becomes free we have a lot to do Quote from Safinar Djemileva wife of the Crimean Tatar leader Mustafa Djemilev during a visit to her in exile in Istanbul 1 July 2023 This book is a short history of the Crimean Tatars based on the Crimean Tatars perspective The Crimean Tatars Alan W. Fisher, 2014-09-01 In the most comprehensive survey of the Crimean Tatars from the foundation of the glorious khanate in the fifteenth century to genocide and the struggle for survival in the twentieth century Alan W Fisher presents a detailed analysis of the culture and history of this people The author clarifies and assesses the myriad problems inherent to a multinational society comprising more than one hundred non Russian ethnic groups and discusses the resurgence of nationalist sentiment the efforts of the Crimean Tatars and others to regain territorial rights lost during the Stalinist era and the political impact these movements have on contemporary Soviet affairs The ^A Crimean Tatars Brian Glyn Williams, 2015-11-10 This volume provides the most up to date analysis of the ethnic cleansing of the Crimean Tatars their exile in Central Asia and their struggle to return to the Crimean homeland It also traces the formation of this diaspora nation from Mongol times to the collapse of the Soviet Union A theme which emerges through the work is the gradual construction of the Crimea as a national homeland by its indigenous Tatar population It ends with a discussion of the post Soviet repatriation of the Crimean Tatars to their Russified homeland and the social emotional and identity problems involved Tatars of the Crimea Edward Allworth, Columbia University. Center for the Study of Central Asia, 1988 The Tatars of Crimea Edward Allworth, 1998 Examines the situation of the Crimean Tatars since the breakup of the USSR and of their continuing struggle to find peace and acceptance in a homeland The Crimean Tatars Brian Williams, 2021-11-22 Taking as its starting point the ethnogenesis of this ethnic group during the Mongol period 13th century this volume traces their history through Islam the Ottoman and the Russian Empires 15th and 17th century The author discusses how Islam Russian colonial policies and indigenous national movements shaped the collective identity of this victimized ethnic group Part two deals with the role of forced migration during the Russian colonial period Soviet nation building policies and ethnic cleansing in shaping this people s modern national identity This work therefore also has wider applications for those dealing with the construction of diasporic identities Taking a comparative approach it traces the formation of Crimean Tatar diasporas in the Ottoman Balkans Republican Turkey and Soviet Central Asia from 1944. A theme which emerges through the work is the gradual construction of the Crimea as a national homeland by its indigenous Tatar population. It ends with a discussion of the post-Soviet repatriation of the Crimean Tatars to their Russified homeland and the social and identity problems involved.

Beyond Memory G. Uehling, 2004-11-26. In the early morning hours of May 18, 1944, the Russian army under orders from Stalin deported the entire Crimean Tatar population from their historical homeland. Given only fifteen minutes to gather their belongings, they were herded into cattle cars bound for Soviet Central Asia. Although the official Soviet record was cleansed of this affair and the name of their ethnic group was erased from all records and official documents, Crimean Tatars did not assimilate with other groups or disappear. This is an ethnographic study of the negotiation of social memory and the role this had in the growth of a national repatriation movement among the Crimean Tatars. It examines the recollections of the Crimean Tatars, the techniques by which they are produced and transmitted, and the formation of a remarkably uniform social memory in light of their dispersion throughout Central Asia. Through the lens of social memory, the book covers not only the deportation and life in the diaspora but the process by which the children and grandchildren of the deportees returned and anchored themselves in the Crimean Peninsula, a place they had never visited.

The Crimean Tatars and Their Influence on the 'triangle of Conflict', 2008. The dissolution of the Soviet Union brought about multidimensional problems to the former republics of the USSR and their inhabitants. In the 1990s, Ukraine, Crimea, and Russia became a center of conflict. Local Crimean authorities took advantage of the specificity of a demographic situation in Crimea where Ukrainians, the titular nation, are in a minority and considerably Russified, to claim for autonomy. Later, they attempted to secede from Ukraine. At the same time, the Crimean Tatar influx from exile, orchestrated by the Stalin regime in 1944, further exacerbated the triangle of conflict between the dyads: Russia-Ukraine and Ukraine-Crimea. The Crimean Tatars, currently 12 percent of the Crimean population, proclaimed Crimea the national territory of the Crimean Tatar people on which they alone possess the right to self-government and claimed greater rights for themselves as allegedly the most indigenous peoples in Crimea, while the rest are colonizers. The thesis explains the historical developments in Crimea and attempts to draw implications to the Ukrainian government in dealing with Crimean Tatar nationalism, which seems to be overcoming the problems within the triangle of conflict that was so sharp in the 1990s.

What Do the Crimean Tatars Face in Crimea? Aleksandr Gennad'evich Osipov, 2014. The Issue Brief concerns further developments which the Crimean Tatars may experience after the Russian annexation of Crimea. The Crimean Tatars are the second largest minority in the Crimean peninsula and they are represented by politically active movements with far-reaching claims concerning the status of Crimean Tatars and territorial self-determination. Within less than one month, these people as well as their homeland have been transferred to another country with different political and legal systems and potentially a less friendly social environment Since the contours of the future legal and institutional framework for the accommodation of Crimean Tatars are not fully clear one can project the major organizational setups and patterns of Russian ethno politics onto Crimea and tentatively assess their applicability We can conclude that in a formal sense the Russian rule does not promise the Crimean Tatars much more than they already had in Ukraine but puts them at risk of a strict police control and pressure Such arrangements as territorial and non territorial autonomy power sharing rehabilitation of the Crimean Tatars as victims of the past repressions may take place but they would have limited practical sense Cultural programmes and recruitment of Crimean Tatars to the regional administration are unlikely to be legally guaranteed and will be fully dependent on the discretion of Russian and Crimean authorities Publisher s description

Minorities at War Elmira Muratova,Nadia Zasanska,2024-11-11 This collection focuses on Ukraine s ethno cultural minorities who in recent years have undergone forced displacement emigration the destruction of familiar ways of life and a transformation of identity and language behaviour The book examines the impact of Russia s war against Ukraine which began with the annexation of Crimea and the war in Donbas in 2014 It shows what happens to the cultural identities of minority groups and considers the mechanisms and components of their resilience in times of crisis Key themes addressed include minorities collective memory and coping strategies mobilisation and humanitarianism forced displacement and the preservation of identity While most works on the Russo Ukrainian war focus on the international context and the causes of the war and its humanitarian consequences for the population of Ukraine and the region as a whole this book seeks to mainstream the issue of ethno cultural minorities which is often neglected in the coverage of this type of conflict The book will be of interest to academics researchers and policy makers working in the areas of Law Political Science Anthropology Human Geography Religious Studies and War and Peace Studies Profile and Migration Intentions of Crimean Tatars
