The Russian Forest Seasons Vladimir I. Koval, Anthony George, Stella Sivakova, All-Russian Research Institute of silviculture and mechanization of Forestry, 2003 Transforming Nature Stephen Christopher Brain, 2007 At the turn of the twentieth century Russian foresters began to notice that forest management concepts borrowed from Germany in the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries wrought terrible damage when applied to Russian forests as vast tracts of valuable woodlands turned to swamps sandy wastelands or tangles of softwoods In response an influential but heretofore undescribed effort to craft specifically Russian forest management techniques arose built around sustainable use small economies of scale intuitive experience and the cultural connection between the Russian people and the forest

European Russian Forests Olga V. Smirnova, Maxim V. Bobrovsky, Larisa G. Khanina, 2018-03-23 The European Russian forests are described within the boreal hemiboreal and nemoral forest regions floodplain forests are also characterized The book presents a classification and description of forest vegetation soil characteristic and assessments of plant diversity and successional status of forest plant communities Structure and composition of vegetation in early and late successional forests are analyzed with an emphasis on forests in State Nature reserves Features of the historical land use such as slash and burn forest cutting grazing influence of fires on forest ecosystems etc are discussed for each forest region The book contains an analysis of the general dynamics of the forest cover during the last two decades based on satellite image processing The main stages of transformation of forest landscapes in European Russia during the Holocene are briefly reviewed in connection with the development of the production economy of people

The Disappearing Russian Forest Brenton M. Barr, Kathleen E. Braden, 1988 Song of the Forest Stephen Brain, 2011-11-13 The Soviets are often viewed as insatiable industrialists who saw nature as a force to be tamed and exploited Song of the Forest counters this assumption uncovering significant evidence of Soviet conservation efforts in forestry particularly under Josef Stalin In his compelling study Stephen Brain profiles the leading Soviet era conservationists agencies and administrators and their efforts to formulate forest policy despite powerful ideological differences By the time of the revolution of 1905 modern Russian forestry science had developed an influential romantic strand especially prevalent in the work of Georgii Morozov whose theory of stand types asked forest managers to consider native species and local conditions when devising plans for regenerating forests After their rise to power the Bolsheviks turned their backs on this tradition and adopted German methods then considered the most advanced in the world for clear cutting and replanting of marketable tree types in artificial forests Later when Stalin s Five Year Plan required vast amounts of timber for industrialization forest radicals proposed flying management an exaggerated version of German forestry where large tracts of virgin forest would be clear cut Opponents who still upheld Morozov s vision favored a conservative regenerating approach and ultimately triumphed by establishing the world s largest forest preserve Another radical turn came with the Great Stalin Plan for the Transformation of Nature implemented in 1948 Narrow belts of new forest planted on the vast Russian steppe would block drying winds provide cool temperatures trap moisture and increase crop production Unfortunately planters were ordered to follow the misguided methods of the notorious Trofim Lysenko and the resulting yields were abysmal But despite Lysenko agency infighting and an indifferent peasant workforce Stalin s forestry bureaus eventually succeeded in winning many environmental concessions from industrial interests In addition the visionary teachings of Morozov found new life ensuring that the forest s song did not fall upon deaf ears Russian Railroads ,1918 Outlook for Russian Forest Product Trade with the People's Republic of China Thomas Runyan Waggener, 1996 The Music of the Russian forest Анатоли Онегов, 1983
