Theory Of Max Min:

The Theory of Max-Min and its Application to Weapons Allocation Problems J. M. Danskin, 2012-12-06 Max Min problems are two step allocation problems in which one side must make his move knowing that the other side will then learn what the move is and optimally counter They are fundamental in parti cular to military weapons selection problems involving large systems such as Minuteman or Polaris where the systems in the mix are so large that they cannot be concealed from an opponent One must then expect the opponent to determine on an optlmal mixture of in the case men tioned above anti Minuteman and anti submarine effort The author s first introduction to a problem of Max Min type occurred at The RAND Corporation about 1951 One side allocates anti missile defenses to various cities The other side observes this allocation and then allocates missiles to those cities If $F(x, y)$ denotes the total residual value of the cities after the attack with x denoting the defender s strategy and y the attacker s the problem is then to find $\text{Max Min} F(x, y)$ The Theory of Max-Min

Game theory is the mathematical study of interaction among independent self interested agents The audience for game theory has grown dramatically in recent years and now spans disciplines as diverse as political science biology psychology economics linguistics sociology and computer science among others What has been missing is a relatively short introduction to the field covering the common basis that anyone with a professional interest in game theory is likely to require Such a text would minimize notation ruthlessly focus on essentials and yet not sacrifice rigor This Synthesis Lecture aims to fill this gap by providing a concise and accessible introduction to the field It covers the main classes of games their representations and the main concepts used to analyze them
