Tiger Tanks:

Tiger Tanks at War Michael Green, James Brown, 2008-02-15 The first prototype for the Tiger tank was set to be ready for Hitler's birthday on April 20 1942 The Henschel Company competing with Porsche produced the superior model and by August of that year the formidable Tiger or Panzerkampfwagen VI Tiger Ausf H was in full production This book takes us behind the scenes with the Tiger tank reviewing the full history the design and mechanics and the mixed record of this machine which was designed to outgun its Russian counterparts Military writer Michael Green offers a close up account accompanied by photographs diagrams and maps of how the Tiger tank operated how it was armed and where it succeeded brilliantly as well as where it failed miserably His book fills a fascinating niche in the history of military technology and of the impact of technology on history itself

Jentz, 2001 Tiger the very name that Allied troops feared It came to symbolize the superiority of German tank design This book has been created as a photo essay showing the best available and rare photographs of Tigers with units at the front No tank that the Allies fielded in World War II was comparable to this combination of the 88mm gun with massive armor protection Allied tankers didn't think that they stood a chance of defeating these formidable Tigers They only hoped that these heavy tanks would breakdown become immobilized in soft ground or be damaged by lucky hits on vulnerable points

The Tiger Tank Story Mark Healy, 2010-04-22 The famous Tiger tanks of the German Panzer forces were only available at the hard pressed front in modest quantities but this tiny number forged a legend out of all proportion to its size This fascinating programme plots the history of its conception and evolution against the background of World War Two tank development Expert analysis is provided by tank and military historians David Fletcher and Professor John Erickson and also includes new footage of surviving Tiger tanks

Wilbeck,2014-08-15 This thesis is a historical analysis of the combat effectiveness of the German schwere Panzer Abteilung or Heavy Tank Battalions during World War II During the course of World War II the German Army developed heavy tank battalions to fulfill the concept of breaking through enemy defenses so faster lighter mechanized forces could exploit the rupture These heavy tank battalions had several different tables of organization but were always centered around either the Tiger or the Tiger II tank They fought in virtually every theater of Europe against every enemy of Germany Ultimately the German military created eleven Army and three Waffen SS heavy tank battalions Of the Army battalions the German command fielded ten as independent battalions which were allocated to Army Groups as needed The German Army assigned the last heavy tank battalion as an organic unit of the elite Panzer Grenadier Division Grossdeutschland The Waffen SS allocated all of their battalions to a different Waffen SS Corps Because these units were not fielded until late in 1942 they did not participate in Germany's major offensive operations that dominated the early part of World War II Germany's strategic situation after mid 1943 forced their military onto the defensive Consequently there are very few instances when heavy tank battalions attacked as a breakthrough force During the latter part of the war they were used in many different ways to provide defensive assistance along very wide frontages This study assesses the German heavy tank battalions as generally effective primarily because of the high kill ratio they achieved However based upon observations from a wide variety of examples this study also outlines several areas where changes may have increased their effectiveness
