

This month WRAPAROUND launches the Whole Earth Epilog, an unexpected sequel to Stewart Brand's famous Whole Earth Catalog. Like the Catalogs, the Epilog will offer ideas, information, and tools for anyone concerned with matters of sufficiency and self-sufficiency. Like WRAPAROUND itself, the Epilog will rely for its vitality on the willingness of its readers to share their experiences with one another. It is this sense of a family tie between the two enterprises that brought Stewart Brand and WRAPAROUND together, so it is a special pleasure to turn the section over to him as this month's guest editor.

Re-Introduction

The Whole Earth Catalog crew is six months into the preparation of a companion volume to The Last Catalog called the WHOLE EARTH EPILOG (to be published Fall 1974). This preliminary issue skims as much cream off our research as we can cram into the Harper's "Wraparound" format.

As before, the EPILOG is a compendium of "access to tools" which are available by mail, high-quality/low-cost, and fostering of independence. As before, our research relies considerably on an active readership which sends in suggestions, reviews, and sundry for publication and payment ($10 per). Our editorial address:

Whole Earth Epilog
Box 428
Sausalito, California 94065

The back part of this "Wraparound" is a preliminary issue of the resurrected "Supplement to the Whole Earth Catalog" now called The COEVOLUTION Quarterly ($6/yr. from Truck Store address, below).

You can mailorder items listed in the EPILOG either from the publisher/manufacturer or, when indicated, from the Whole Earth Truck Store or Harper's, whichever is closer to you. Those addresses:

Editor Breaks Promise

Some explanation is owed. In May 1971 we ceased making Whole Earth Catalogs forever sincerely enough on the expectation that someone would quickly come along and fill the niche better than we did. Well,

- 1) They didn't.
- 2) The Last Whole Earth Catalog continued to sell 5,000 copies a week with increasingly outdated information.
- 3) The North American economy began to lose its mind, putting more people in need of tools for independence and the economy as a whole in need of greater local resilience; and
- 4) After burning our bridges we reported before the Throne to announce, "We're here for our next terrific idea." The Throne said, "That Was It."

Understanding Whole Systems

Small is Beautiful

"If the Renaissance is to have an economist to make its case before the world, E.F. Schumacher is the man." So says Theodore Roszak in his introduction to Small is Beautiful. I think the claim bears out.

Schumacher begins with an assault on industrial growth, liquefier of three forms of "capital" on which industrial development depends. He states the three as: fossil fuels (oil, coal, natural gas), biological capital, and the human substance. Fossil fuels are running down. An industrial system cannot create or recycle burnt fuels and no industrial system could persist without them. Even nuclear power must be run on fossil fuel supplements.

Human substance is harder to grasp, but even so vital. In its essence it is local and freedom, diversity of customs, and opportunity for error. Advanced and successful technology overseen by experts poses the threat and in no place is the threat more visible than atomic reactors. In no place is it better worded than in this paragraph from a technician of the technology: "We nuclear people have made a Faustian compact with society: we offer an almost unique possibility for a technologically abundant world for the oncoming billions, through our miraculous, inexhaustible energy source, but this energy source at the same time is tainted with potential side effects that, if uncontrolled, could spell disaster."

Social controls must be designed by these same technicians to assure that no radioactive quantities escape from reactors, transport, storage, or reprocessing. If it is a technology that insists on a "world society in which wars or civil disturbances can never happen." Large mistakes oughtn't happen either. The blackboard postulates a highly ordered, infertile, and crystalline social organization. Not worth living in. He sums with this: "the modern industrial system consumes the very basis on which it has been erected. To use the language of the economist, it lives on irreplacable capital which it cheerfully treats as income."

It could well be that rich people treasure peace more highly than poor people, but only if they feel utterly secure — and this is a contradiction in terms. Their wealth depends on making inordinately large demands on limited world resources and thus puts them on an unworkable collision course — not primarily with the poor (who are weak and defenceless) but with other rich people.

The Ecologist

By far the most interesting ecological/political reporting and criticism available is this British publication. (One of their special issues, called Blueprint for Survival is now a book, $5.95 from Houghton Mifflin.)
