Gilchrist, 2013-09-05 This volume deals with the visual perception of lightness brightness and transparency of surfaces both under minimal laboratory conditions and in complex images typical of everyday life Each chapter analyzes the challenging problem of how a pattern of light intensities on the retina is transformed into the visual experience of varying shades of grey transparent surfaces and light and shadow One important theme which unifies the group of contributions is the recognition that the perception of surface lightness is rooted fundamentally in the encoding of relative intensities of light within the retinal image not intensities per se A second important unifying theme is an appreciation of the multiple dimensions of the visual experience of lightness brightness and transparency people do not perceive the lightness of surfaces by discarding information concerning the light illuminating those surfaces rather they perceive a pattern of illumination projected onto a pattern of surface greys The long fascinating problems of surface lightness and color perception have become very active topics recently as a resurging interest within the visual perception community has coincided with an increasing appreciation of the centrality of these problems by the emerging machine vision community The best of recent psychophysical work on lightness perception as presented in this volume will be of great interest to both of these communities This book also marks a synthesis of old and new A traditional strongly Gestalt approach that had fallen into neglect is updated in the light of new quantitative systematic methods and important later discoveries such as the disappearance of stabilized retinal images The book draws on such diverse approaches as Gestalt and ecological psychology threshold psychophysics and computational vision advancing our understanding of the interrelations among surface color illumination perceived depth shading and transparency Popular Astronomy ,1905 Camera ,1916 Judicial Transparency in China Yiming Wang, He Tian, 2022-11-13 Based on the Judicial Transparency Index Assessment 2019 and 2020 conducted in China by the Institute of Law of the Chinese Academy of Social Sciences this book summarizes and analyzes the current situation of judicial openness in China using a sample of 218 courts across the country for the study The book analyzes the ideological and institutional origins of judicial openness and examines the operation of judicial openness through the practical experience of role replacement By analyzing evaluation data in the fields of audit information disclosure trial information disclosure judicial enforcement data disclosure and judicial reform data disclosure the book points out that the current judicial disclosure has made significant progress but there are still problems such as unclear disclosure standards insufficient rigidity in disclosure requirements and the scope of disclosure still needs to be expanded The book recommends accelerating the disclosure of judicial legislation public standards and strengthening assessment and
