Karl Bodmer's Studio Art W. Raymond Wood, Joseph C. Porter, David C. Hunt, 2002 During the expedition twenty three year old Bodmer sketched and painted a wealth of landscapes and Native American portraits that would be immortalized as engravings in Maximilian's published journals and accompanying atlas Now considered the most vivid and instructive depiction of the nineteenth century American West and its people prior to the decimation of many Plains tribes by disease Bodmer's artwork continues to intrigue historians scholars and collectors

Two Ravens Louis Two Ravens Irwin, Robert Liebert, 1996-09-01 This is the story of a remarkable Native American who through his own life struggles learned to unite the paths of warrior and healer Two Ravens was taught the traditional healing ways of his Mandan Hidatsa and Arickara people by his grandfather knowledge which served him well in his dealings with the hostile white society he later encountered After years of rampant discrimination and racism he became a warrior in the fight for the rights of his people He joined the efforts of Leonard Peltier Leonard Crow Dog Frank Clearwater and many other prominent leaders to ensure that his people might live in peace and with respect But the constant battles often left Two Ravens censured both by fellow Native Americans who supported a more conservative political agenda and white law enforcement agencies who considered him an outlaw Pulled between different worlds he struggled against alcoholism and despair It was only when he returned to his grandfather's teachings that he discovered a way to join the paths of the warrior and the healer In the years before his death Two Ravens worked as a substance abuse counselor and spiritual advisor helping others integrate Native American traditions into their lives in contemporary America Offers personal insights from a Native American who worked with the American Indian Movement from its inception

Indigenous War Painting of the Plains Arni Brownstone, 2024-07-23 In the nineteenth and early twentieth centuries the Indigenous peoples of the Great Plains practiced an archival art narrating war exploits in large scale paintings executed on animal hide robes shirts tipi covers and tipi liners Essentially autobiographical the paintings were worn and lived in by the men whose war exploits they portrayed and were made to be read by the public at large Executed in a pictorial narrative style and documenting actual events these paintings blend visual art and history Indigenous War Painting of the Plains is the first comprehensive look at this important North American art form covering the full corpus of war paintings from fourteen tribes across the plains Two impediments have previously made such a book impractical photography alone falls short of rendering war paintings for the printed page and only about half of the surviving works have reliable documentation on their cultural origins Arni Brownstone surmounts these difficulties by producing precise electronic redrawings and by using well documented paintings to inform poorly documented examples bolstered by a careful examination of collection histories Featuring some 300 photographs and electronic redrawings the book focuses on 83 paintings organized into four chapters covering the paintings of tribes associated with a specific geographical sphere of artistic influence Four appendixes feature paintings combined with translations by Indigenous collaborators who had intimate knowledge of the depicted events Offering vivid access to the key works of war painting preserved in 37 museums throughout North America and Europe Indigenous War Painting of the Plains illuminates distinctions between painting styles of different tribes reveals how they influenced one another and changed over time and conveys a deep understanding of how war painting developed in relation to profound social changes in Plains Indian cultures     Zeus Arthur Bernard Cook,1925     *The Annals of Scottish Natural
