Interceptive Actions in Sport Simon Bennett, Keith Davids, Geert J.P. Savelsbergh, John van der Kamp, 2004-03-01
Dynamic interceptive actions are those actions for which the body or an implement must be moved into the right place at the right time in order to accomplish a task. These actions are particularly prevalent in sport, for example reaching to catch a ball or running towards a target to make a tackle. This book is the first to offer a comprehensive review of existing theoretical research on dynamic interceptive actions as well as close examination of specific practical applications. The book includes material on catching, wielding tennis rackets, putting in golf, controlling and kicking a soccer ball. It is essential reading for anybody with a close interest in motor learning and control or skill acquisition and will be of interest to students of sport psychology, movement science, and coaching science. Joseph Baker, Stephen Copley, Jörg Schorer, Nick Wattie, 2017-03-16

With contributions from leading researchers and practitioners, this book offers a complete overview of contemporary talent identification and development from in-depth discussion of methodological and philosophical issues through to practical applications.
