The Architecture of Cognition Paco Calvo, John Symons, 2014-04-18 Philosophers and cognitive scientists reassess systematicity in the post connectionist era offering perspectives from ecological psychology embodied and distributed cognition enactivism and other methodologies In 1988 Jerry Fodor and Zenon Pylyshyn challenged connectionist theorists to explain the systematicity of cognition In a highly influential critical analysis of connectionism they argued that connectionist explanations at best can only inform us about details of the neural substrate explanations at the cognitive level must be classical insofar as adult human cognition is essentially systematic More than twenty five years later however conflicting explanations of cognition do not divide along classicist connectionist lines but oppose cognitivism both classicist and connectionist with a range of other methodologies including distributed and embodied cognition ecological psychology enactivism adaptive behavior and biologically based neural network theory This volume reassesses Fodor and Pylyshyn's systematicity challenge for a post connectionist era The contributors consider such questions as how post connectionist approaches meet Fodor and Pylyshyn's conceptual challenges whether there is empirical evidence for or against the systematicity of thought and how the systematicity of human thought relates to behavior The chapters offer a representative sample and an overview of the most important recent developments in the systematicity debate Contributors Ken Aizawa William Bechtel Gideon Borensztajn Paco Calvo Anthony Chemero Jonathan D Cohen Alicia Coram Jeffrey L Elman Stefan L Frank Antoni Gomila Seth A Herd Trent Kriete Christian J Lebiere Lorena Lobo Edouard Machery Gary Marcus Emma Mart n Fernando Mart nez Manrique Brian P McLaughlin Randall C O Reilly Alex A Petrov Steven Phillips William Ramsey Michael Silberstein John Symons David Travieso William H Wilson Willem Zuidema

Verbal Minds Antoni Gomila, 2011-12-05 Language has most consistently been chosen as the key to understanding the human mind and to providing the building blocks necessary for achieving other specificities in human cognition abstract propositional thought recursivity decoupling of current situation creativity and conscious control It is not so clear how language influences human cognition This book discusses research regarding verbal ability and cognition

Verbal Minds Toni Gomila, 2011-12-05 Ten years ago the hegemonic idea was that language was a kind of independent module within the mind a sort of print out of whatever cognitive activity was taking place but without any influence whatsoever in that activity While this view is still held evidence amassed in the last 10 years suggests another view of their inter relationships even though exactly which one is not clear yet in part because of the lack of a unified view and in part because of the inertia of the previous position in part because all this evidence must be considered together An increasing number of researchers are paying attention to the issues involved as the human language specificity may provide a clue to understand what makes humans smart to account for the singularities of human cognition This book provides a comprehensive review of the multiple developments that have taken place in the last 10 years on the question of the relationships between language and thought and integrates them into a coherent framework It will be relevant for anyone working in the sciences of languages Synthesizes recent research Provides an integrated view of cognitive architecture Explains the relationships between language and thought

How Can the Human Mind Occur in the Physical Universe? John R. Anderson, 2009-08-28 The question for me is how can the human mind occur in the physical universe We now know that the world is governed by physics We now understand the way biology nestles comfortably within that The issue is how will the mind do that as well Allen Newell December 4 1991 Carnegie Mellon University The argument John Anderson gives in this book was inspired by the passage above from the last lecture by one of the pioneers of cognitive science Newell describes what for him is the pivotal question of scientific inquiry and Anderson gives an answer that is emerging from the study of brain and behavior Humans share the same basic cognitive architecture with all primates but they have evolved abilities to exercise abstract control over cognition and process more complex relational patterns The human cognitive architecture consists of a set of largely independent modules associated with different brain regions In this book Anderson discusses in detail how these various modules can combine to produce behaviors as varied as driving a car and solving an algebraic equation but focuses principally on two of the modules the declarative and procedural The declarative module involves a memory system that moment by moment attempts to give each person the most appropriate possible window into his or her past The procedural module involves a central system that strives to develop a set of productions that will enable the most adaptive response from any state of the modules Newell argued that the answer to his question must take the form of a cognitive architecture and Anderson organizes his answer around the ACT R architecture but broadens it by bringing in research from all areas of cognitive science including how recent work in brain imaging maps onto the cognitive architecture

International Encyclopedia of Developmental and Instructional Psychology Erik de Corte,Franz E. Weinert,1996 This Encyclopedia intends to provide a research based overview in an educational perspective of the present state of the art of our knowledge and understanding of the conditions processes and modifiabilities of human development and learning The Encyclopedia focuses on both developmental psychology and instructional psychology Over the past decade the boundaries between these two separate research domains have become increasingly obscure Indeed developmental psychologists have shown a growing interest in the impact of environmental factors on development this has led to the study of educational and instructional variables the pre dominantly environmental factors Meanwhile instructional psychology has become a major subdomain of research on human cognition and development A substantial contribution to the synergy between both domains derives from the robust research finding that developmental changes are very important conditions as well as consequences of the acquisition of knowledge and meta cognitive strategies The resulting changes have inspired the decision to combine both developmental and instructional psychology into one single volume The trend toward the integration of both domains notwithstanding the systematic discussion of their research findings requires a certain delimitation of the two fields The Encyclopedia is divided into 16 areas in order to reflect the specific nature as well as the integration of both domains In the first section which is most representative of the integrative tendency a general framework of research on human development learning and instruction is outlined The next six chapters are concerned with the various aspects of human development and learning The remaining nine sections represent an overview of the research findings on learning and instruction which are relevant to education Articles include updated and revised material from the International Encyclopedia of Education 2nd Edition described by Choice as being a premier resource when judged on virtually every criteria applied to a reference work The Encyclopedia provides an informative introduction to aspects of developmental psychology and instructional psychology that significantly influence education

The International Encyclopedia of Education Torsten Husen, T.N. Postlethwaite, 1994-04-19. Scholarly information in all fields of human knowledge is in continuous flux. Educational practices change not only as a result of reforms which are the subject of legislation but also in response to new societal demands, needs and changes in the economic conditions in different countries. It is this change within the various fields of education and the fact that many of the entries in the first edition were written in the early 1980s which convinced the editors in 1990 of the need for a completely new edition of the Encyclopedia. The vast majority of entries in the second edition are completely new; in only a few cases have entries from the first edition or from the supplementary volumes been updated. New entries have also been commissioned on specific topics: sociology of education, girls and women in education, the history of education, anthropology, philosophy of education and instructional psychology, so that the scope of the original sections has been expanded. Every effort has been made to present the most up to date information about the theme dealt with in each entry. Authors were selected on the strength of their worldwide knowledge of the topic on which they were asked to write. The authors of over 1,200 entries represent 96 countries. The Honorary Editorial Advisory Board helped ensure that a balance was achieved and contacts with international organizations assisted in selecting authors with a good international overview Particular attention has been paid to the inclusion of entries of special concern to the Third World This is clearly evident in those entries dealing with educational and policy planning economics of education vocational education and comparative education

The Architecture of the Mind Peter Carruthers,2006-09-28 This book is a comprehensive development and defense of one of the guiding assumptions of evolutionary psychology that the human mind is composed of a large number of semi independent modules The Architecture of the Mind has three main goals One is to argue for massive mental modularity Another is to answer a How possibly challenge to any such approach The first part of the book lays out the positive case supporting massive modularity It also outlines how the thesis should best be developed and articulates the notion of module that is in question Then the second part of the book takes up the challenge of explaining how the sorts of flexibility and creativity that are distinctive of the human mind could possibly be grounded in the operations of a massive number of modules Peter Carruthers s third aim is to show how the various components of the mind are likely to be linked and interact with one another indeed this is crucial to demonstrating how the human mind together with its familiar capacities can be underpinned by a massively modular set of mechanisms He outlines and defends the basic framework of a perception belief desire planning motor control architecture as well as detailing the likely components and their modes of connectivity Many specific claims about the place within this architecture of natural language of a mind reading system and others are explained and motivated A number of novel proposals are made in the course of these discussions one of which is that creative human thought depends upon a prior kind of creativity of action Written with unusual clarity and directness and surveying an extensive range of research in cognitive science this book will be essential reading for anyone with an interest in the nature and organization of the mind
