

HISTORICAL INQUIRY

Historical inquiry is a process of questioning, organising, analysing and explaining events that happened in the past. It is a cyclical process which utilises key inquiry questions. Questions focus on historical sources or evidences.

Simple diagram showing historical inquiry

Diagram by Michelle M. Moran

The diagram shows historical inquiry at the centre. This highlights the development of students' historical knowledge and understanding, concepts and skills. In the outer layer, the figure shows the cyclical process of historical inquiry from (1) observation and posing of essential questions, (2) gathering of data through research, (3) analysis and interpretation of the source, (4) drawing of conclusion and (5) discussion and review.

Historical concepts include continuity and change, significance, cause and effect and perspectives. Historical skills include comprehension, understanding of chronology, analysis and use of sources and research.
