Benjamin,2015-06-02 Excerpt from The Singing Voice After having read Mr Benjamin's remarks upon singing and having carefully sung each one of his progressive vocalizes myself I have no hesitation in saying that the vocal method here set forth is admirable and given good material upon which to work should with conscientious study be productive of excellent results It is absolutely essential however that individual voices be individually trained in order to overcome faults or to improve good qualities In singing as in every other art whether of peace or of war everything depends upon the man behind the gun the pupil is as it were the gun the master is the man who trains it the execution that the gun so trained performs must under proper guidance be effective It almost seems that less common sense is exercised by would be singers and those of their families who are enthusiastic about them than by persons who are preparing for other walks of life they think that nothing but voice is necessary and are usually oblivious to the fact that in this branch of art more care is needed than in any other not only in the actual schooling of the vocal organs but of the mind as well and of the body as a whole in order that strength may be acquired to withstand the great strain of a busy professional life The possession of a fine voice is as frequent among the uneducated as among the educated classes of society and it follows that as the former are much more numerous corresponding care should be taken in the all round mental training of the average pupil At this time when general education and particular regard for the English language is at such a low ebb in America I cannot too seriously impress upon all singers the absolute necessity of culture of refinement of mind and body of demeanor and of diction About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works
